School Board Members Protest Cut In County Budget

SUPERVISORS RUSH WIRE TO ADKINSON

Final Action Will Depend on Word From Superintendent in North

DR. DAVIS SPEAKS

Declares Slash Would Be Serious Handicap to Operation of Schools

THREE MEMBERS of the Santa Ana board of education, with Dr. Percy Davis, school superintendent, appeared before the board of supervisors today to protest against the $195,000 cut in the budgets of the county schools. They asked that the cut be not allowed and that the school tax rates be placed back where they were before the slash.

The supervisors, after hearing protests, instructed County Auditor W. T. Lambert to wire County School Superintendent Ray Adkinson for official confirmation of his desire to make the cut as announced. Upon receipt of this confirmation the board would be in a position to accept the budget if it so desired. Adkinson is on the Klamath river. Although it was known that Adkinson had planned the cut, the board wishes official confirmation before taking final action. It was expected that a reply would be received either late today or early tomorrow.

"FLYING NURSERY" DUE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—America's first "flying nursery," equipped with dolls, games, picture books and three live children, was due at Roosevelt Field today after a leisurely summer vacation tour across the continent from San Diego, Calif.

The three young passengers, children of Edmund T. Price, president of the Solar Aircraft company of San Diego, are three year old Joan, Mitzel, nine, and Charles, seven. They have not only become accustomed to air travel, but view their daily flights, it is said, with an air of bored detachment, paying more attention to their games than to the roar of the motors.

CAPT. HAWKS BEGINS NEW RECORD FLIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I. Aug. 20.—(UP)—Capt. Frank Hawks left here at 9:45 a. m. today in an attempt to break the record for North Worth, Tex. He will make a stop at Evansville, Ind.

Hawks will meet his mother, Mrs. Ida Mae Hawks, of Hollywood, Calif., in North Worth and escort the passenger plane in which she is making a trip here. He will attempt to break records between each scheduled stop of her plane.

LINDBERGH NOT QUESTIONED BY JAP OFFICIALS

American Ace and Wife to Work Tonight on Dis-abled Plane

TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Their disabled plane lashed to a Japanese rescue ship, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh remained fog bound today off Ketoi Isle, in the Kurile islands, a radio dispatch to the Otchishli station reported.

The dispatch said that the plane's anchor had been broken in their forced landing and fight with rough seas during the night.

Motor trouble also developed, it was revealed. Repairs were to be made after the waves, slapping dangerously at their transpacific plane, had subsided.

The colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were taken aboard the Shinshiro Maru, where they are spending tonight. The ship anchored just off Ketoi Isle, to the west of the island, awaiting clear weather.

Ministry of communications officials today reiterated denials that the captain of the Shinshiro Maru had questioned Colonel Lindbergh as to why he landed off Ketoi without government permission.

The reports are manifestly absurd, the ministry pointed out, inasmuch as the Shinshiro Maru was ordered to proceed to Lindbergh's aid when he alighted. It was added

CARNAHAN ANSWERS CHARGES BY LOEB

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(UP)—H. L. Carnahan, state building and loan commissioner, today made answer to charges lodged yesterday by Arthur Loeb, Julian oil stockholder, that Carnahan authorized payment of $500 monthly to S. C. Lewis while Lewis was in jail.

Carnahan explained the disbursement as follows: Lewis advanced the Sunset Pacific Oil company, an organization formed to conserve what remained of assets of the Julian company, the sum of $7500 to be used in financing recovery of Julian stockholders' funds.

Later, when Lewis was under indictment, Carnahan said the Sunset company paid a $5000 fee to Lewis' attorney, and paid the balance in $500 installments after Lewis' conviction.

BOUND AND BEATEN BODY OF MAN FOUND

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—(UP)—From the bound and beaten body of Felix Williams, 35, police today followed a trail that promised to lead from the Bush street apartment where he was found strangled to the days when he served in the U. S. Marine corps. A single definite clue was left by the slayer, it was believed. Beside the body, which was stretched out on a bed, both legs and arms securely bound, was a small steel button, apparently from a uniform. It bore the inscription "Dunes Personnel," and attached to it were bits of thread, as though it had dropped to the floor from Williams' assailant.

The man had been dead five days.

TORSO OF MAN IS FOUND IN CITY DUMP

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Identity of the torso of a man found on a refuse dump near the city limits was sought by officials today.

The body had been decapitated and both arms and legs removed. It apparently had been placed there at noon yesterday and was found several hours later. Police said the man apparently had been dead several days.

No marks or clues were found to indicate perpetrators of the murder.

Will Take No Chance On L. A. Water

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Mayor Walter E. Batterson will take no chances with drinking a toast in water.

A bottle of Los Angeles water is en route here so that Mayor Batterson may drink a toast to France. The water is a gift from Mayor John C. Porter of Los Angeles, who wrote he was sending bottles of water to 17 American mayors, so they may join him Saturday in drinking a toast to the country they visited this summer.

Mayor Porter refused to drink a champagne toast to the French president while overseas.

Mayor Batterson gave orders that the water be ordered by the health department as soon as it arrives.

THREE YOUTHS KILLED WHILE FIGHTING FIRE

Volunteers Bearing Bodies of Comrades Down Out of Mountains

MARIPOSA, Calif., Aug. 20.—(UP)—A crew of fire fighters this morning was believed toiling over a rough mountain trail above here, bearing homeward the bodies of three young companions burned to death while fighting a brush fire yesterday afternoon.

The bodies are those of Arnold Love, 26, Mt. Bullion; Frank Smith, 22, Mormon Bar; and James Worley, 18, of near Boot Jack. All were Mariposa county men and experienced in fighting mountain fires. Love was married and the father of two children.

Although the fire the young men were helping fight is spread over a large area, it was only in brush and a small amount of timber and was not considered dangerous. National forest service authorities and companions of the unfortunate youths were at a loss to explain the tragedy.

The death scene was a little can-

'MAD RIFLEMAN' OF MADERA ENDS LIFE

MADERA, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Phillip Sorrenti, 45, the "mad rifleman" who killed Angelo Delleville, 35, war veteran, because of a grudge, near here Monday morning, had cheated the law today. He died yesterday afternoon in the hospital here from the bullet he fired into his head when on the point of capture near Firebaugh Tuesday morning.

Sorrenti shot Delleville with a rifle while the rancher was running and dodging among a crew of grape pickers, killing him with a single bullet in the head from more than 50 yards range. On his death bed Sorrenti admitted the killing.

Delleville a year ago evicted Sorrenti from a vineyard because of failure to meet payments.

Ranch Show Held By Legal Writs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The 191 Ranch wild west show was stranded again today—this time by legal writs backing up its 400 employees' demand for payment of back wages.

Starting home to Oklahoma after two weeks' delay in Washington, the circus moved just six miles. Six Maryland constables stopped the train as it crossed into that state from the District of Columbia. They were armed with a suitcase full of attachment papers. The attachments said the circus owners were "absconding debtors" and decreed that the train must not be moved until a hearing is held. If the employees are upheld by the courts, the show could be sold at auction to satisfy their claims for $28,000.

BUILDING WAGE SCALE SET BY SCHOOL BOARD

Santa Ana Group Acts Under Law Recently Enacted by State Legislators

LAST NIGHT THE Santa Ana board of education approved a schedule of wages for men who will work on construction of the shower building at the Frances Willard Junior High school, and authorized advertising for bids on the structure. Offers from contractors will be opened on September 4. The building will cost from $25,000 to $27,000, it is estimated.

The wage scale was the first adopted by a public body in Santa Ana for a specific project on which labor actually will be employed and was made necessary by a law passed by the last legislature requiring that such a scale be adopted for public projects. The scale applies, however, only to this particular project. It was approved after answers to a questionnaire sent to 100 Orange county contractors had been studied.

In general the scale is lower than that approved by the Los Angeles board of education and higher than the schedule adopted for the city of Alhambra. It is considerably lower than the schedule adopted by the Sacramento board of education. It is from one to two dollars below the scale adopted by the prevailing wage committee which met last week Wednesday at the Builders' Exchange.

Under the schedule adopted for the shower building workers, brick layers would receive $9.50 per eight hour day; helpers, $6; cement finishers, $7.25; helpers, $4; floor finishers, $7.50; laborers, including watchmen, $3.50; carpenters, rough work, $6; finishing, $7.

BELIEVE FOUR DEAD AT ATLANTIC CITY

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Freak rain, wind and lightning storms along the Atlantic City Beach terminated in floods and disrupted communications and left a toll in lives and property damage.

Four were feared drowned in the surf off Atlantic City, when the deadly undertow from a series of waves six to eight feet high sucked scores into deep water. Only one body had been recovered.

John Birch, Columbus, Ohio, literally danced to his death in the surf at Wildwood when he slipped a few steps in a dance marathon under way there to rescue a 15-year-old boy.

Cause of the sudden tidal attack on Atlantic City beach was unknown today. Several advanced the theory it was the result of a tropical storm Monday off Porto Rico, which had radiated huge waves at a speed of 35 miles an hour.

GOVERNMENT FILES WINE BRICKS SUIT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The United States government had on file today a suit expected to determine if stores which sell wine bricks which can be turned into wine can be padlocked.

The government filed suit yesterday to padlock the premises where Vino Sano Distributors, Inc., sold wine bricks before they were raided a little more than two weeks ago.

If the government wins the suit, the victory will be only a technical one for the company has moved its offices and has suspended business pending the outcome of criminal complaints against three men arrested in the raid.

Wheat Offered To China On Long Terms

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Chairman Stone of the federal farm board announced today he had informed the Chinese government through the state department that the board was willing to discuss a proposed sale to China of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat on credit.

China inquired regarding wheat purchases. The government hoped to relieve Yangtze river valley famine sufferers with American grain.

China made no proposals on terms of sale. Stone said he believed a two or three year credit would be acceptable.

Eleven Year Old Daughter of E. Winbiger Drags Lad From Water

COURAGE AND RARE judgment on the part of Elizabeth May Winbiger, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Winbiger, of Tustin, yesterday afternoon saved the life of Jack Howard, 7, son of Police Chief and Mrs. Floyd W. Howard, her young cousin, from drowning in Newport Bay.

The little girl, seeing Jack slip off a surf board on which he was riding in eight feet of water, paddled her automobile tire float over to him and managed to hold him up above water, until he was rescued by passersby on the beach.

The Winbiger family is spending the summer at the beach and the children were swimming in the bay near White Bridge. The channel recently has been dug out at the point and Jackie did not know that he was in deep water when he slipped off the board. He

ACTRESS ARRESTED ON STATE CHARGES

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Mary Nolan, film actress, stood on a street corner waiting for a car, when two deputy sheriffs tapped her on the shoulder and took her into court for her asserted failure to pay wages to employees.

Miss Nolan, who recently went into bankruptcy in New York City, told Justice of the Peace H. E. Yates of New Jersey she was innocent of the charges and was released on $300 bail, to return September 11 for trial.

Five employees, including her cook, chauffeur, nurse, maid and a musician, claim she owes them $356.76.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Ruth Jayne Crammer's arraignment in connection with the mysterious shooting of State Senator Roy T. Yates of New Jersey was postponed once more today, after the former cloak model had fainted on the stand.

Miss Crammer was recommitted to the women's prison, without bail. Judge Michael Ford told her attorney, former District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, that if he did admit her to bail, "the bail would be so high that it would amount to keeping her in jail."

Report 600 Are Killed In Battle

Hand to Hand Fighting in Streets of Gibara is Bloody Affair

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Victories for loyal federal forces on all fronts after heavy fighting and early suppression of the rebellion were optimistically proclaimed at the presidential palace today.

Gibara, important seaport at the eastern tip of the island, was restored to federal authority after 48 hours of sporadic but frequently severe fighting, a government official said.

It was unofficially estimated that 600 rebels and federal forces had been killed in the battle of Gibara—the worst in two weeks of civil war. Advances from Gibara said the rebel expeditionary force crushed by federal troops included World War veterans of several nationalities.

Army headquarters refrained from confirming messages from Gibara, but it was understood that all insurgents in that rebel stronghold had been captured or driven from the town and that the federalists were incomplete control.

The scene of the revolt shifted to Gibara—as predicted by the United Press—with the landing of an expeditionary force from a ship flying a Norwegian flag. Government troops were rushed into the eastern end of the island and engaged the reinforced rebels in all-day battle. This at times resulted in hand-to-hand bayonet fighting in the streets of the ancient Spanish-built town.

ABANDON PLANS FOR RECALL OF JURIST

REDWOOD CITY, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Change in the state law providing for instructed jury verdicts today was being advocated by a citizens' committee, organized here to effect the recall of Judge George H. Buck. The recall plan had been abandoned.

Change in the program came after John J. Taaffe, attorney for Mrs. Constance May Gavin in her $4,000,000 suit for a share in the James L. Flood estate, would be injurious to her case in the event a new trial is granted.

George Merrill, former mayor, in suggesting working for a change in the law spoke of "rumors of corruption in high offices."

Mrs. Gavin previously had urged that the recall move be dropped.

RECEIVER CHOSEN FOR CLOSED BANK

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(UP)—H. E. Schilling, representative of the comptroller of currency, has been appointed receiver for the United States National bank, which closed its doors Tuesday.

The bank, which has deposits of $6,400,000, was said to have got into difficulties through recent failure of the Harold G. Ferguson corporation. Schilling said no formal statement would be issued until a complete examination of the bank's books had been made. He recently liquidated the First National bank of Fresno.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, Aug. 20.—[To the Editor of The Register:] Every day brings new schemes in the papers for relief. The Russians got a five-year plan. Maybe it's terrible, but they got one. We been two years just trying to get a plan. The latest two came from Mr. McKelvie of the North and Gov. Long of the South; neither one helps the corn raiser or the city fellow. One wants to give all the surplus wheat to the unemployed (that has been suggested more times than there is bushels.) Long wants to plant no cotton next year. Both good schemes, but neither don't put anybody to work, so we are still in the market for a plan. We will just about have to save ourselves accidentally. That's the way we stumbled on prosperity.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

S. A. NET STAR IS BEATEN BY MISS NUTHALL

Josephine Cruickshank is Eliminated from U. S. Title Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Miss Betty Nuthall, Great Britain's No. 1 player and defending champion, entered the quarter final bracket of the 44th annual women's national tennis singles championship today when she defeated Miss Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, Calif., 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Nuthall had little trouble with Miss Cruickshank in the first set. Britain's Betty supplemented her deep forehand drives to the baseline with tantalizing chop shots. This attack kept the Santa Ana girl constantly on the run and had her weary before the second chapter was well under way.

The second set found Miss Nuthall very much in stride. She sailed to the net often and scored killing smashes that bounded far back. Miss Cruickshank's reach.

Betty was unusually fortunate with her net cord shots in this set, no less than six of her chops struck the top of the webbing and rolled over the placements.

Great Britain's clean sweep today, coupled with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittinghall's triumph of yesterday, gave the nation half of the eight quarter-final round places. The remaining four berths are occupied by Californians, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, and Miss Dorothy Weisel.

Charges Hurdled At Power Trust By Councilman

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(UP)—City Councilman Carl I. Jacobson charged today in council meeting that the "power trust" was trying to disrupt the Metropolitan Water district by influencing members to withdraw.

SCHOOL BOARD PROTESTS CUT IN ALLOWANCE

School board delegation, pointed out that the cut would be a serious handicap to operating the city schools inasmuch as school budgets already have been made up and have been pared to a low point. The additional cut, after plans had been made to proceed on the original budget, will cause considerable inconvenience and will hamper the schools, he said. Although there is a surplus available for use, it was pointed out that it has been planned to keep this for a reserve for building. If the surplus were used to make up the difference occasioned by the budget cut, the reserve would be practically wiped out, it was said.

Members of the school board who were present were George Wells, president Rolla Hays and M. E. Youel. E. D. Boynton, auditor for the board, accompanied the group.

A group of ranchers from the Emery district and nearby areas was before the board to commend its action in reducing the tax burden. Possibility of further cuts through salary reductions was pointed out by one of the speakers. Cuts in the mileage rates allowed for some official cars were suggested.

The budget as it now stands amounts to $7,227,505, with the $195,000 school cut taken out. On this basis tax rates of $1.94 outside cities and $1.54 inside would be possible.

FUNERAL SATURDAY

FULLERTON, Aug. 20.—Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday from the McKinlay and Suters funeral parlors for Edward Watson, who died of a heart attack Monday in Los Angeles. The Rev. H. E. Evans, acting pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate.

Members of the Warwick camp, United Spanish War Veterans, of which Watson was a member, will conduct a burial service at the grave in Loma Vista cemetery. Members of the post will act as pallbearers. The auxiliary of the post will attend the services at the chapel.

The Alhambra city scale includes watchmen at $2; laborers, $3; cement finishers, $5; helpers, $3; brick layers, $7; helpers, $3.50. Plans for the Willard shower building were approved last night after the board had discussed carefully the scheme which calls for drawing steam from the plant in the main building to heat water for the showers. This will eliminate a heating unit in the shower building. A vacuum pump will draw the steam to the shower building.

To Issue Plans

George Newcom, business manager for the board, will issue the plans to the contractors after checking up answers made by contractors on the questionnaires now in use. A deposit of $20 will be required before plans are taken. It is expected that they will be ready Monday, according to Frederick Eley, architect.

On a bid of $890,40, the Spinner Dist company of Los Angeles was awarded the contract for furnishing and installing curtains on the stage of the new school. The bid was the lowest of three submitted, and includes a 12-foot screen for motion picture projection.

A bid for lighting fixtures was received from the Empire Lighting company of Los Angeles, but was not opened because other bids have not yet been received. In response to suggestions from property owners near the playground of the Willard school, the board instructed Newcom to get accurate measurements and costs for fencing the playgrounds at this school and also at the Julia Lathrop school. The danger to pupils from traffic and the inconvenience caused adjacent property owners when children run across their lawns and flower beds were pointed out as being evidence of the advisability of the fences being installed.

The board approved payment of bills for the month ending August 6, and amounting to $13,121.68.

W. Maxwell Burke, member of the board, reported that there was $130 in the playground fund after the recent season was closed up. New concrete tennis courts at the Frances Willard school were accepted as completed.

Nearly 100 new long distance telephone circuits were placed in service in the State of Louisiana during 1930.

A RUSSIAN "HORSE LAUGH"

The order of the Laughing Camel has been conferred upon workers of the Stalingrad, Russia, tractor plant, and here's the insignia to prove it. But instead of being a complimentary award, it is a punishment—an ominous, derisive warning—the equivalent of an American horse laugh. For, instead of the 50,000 tractors scheduled to be produced during 1930, the plant turned out only 3000. In four months there have been 2789 breaks in the machinery, due allegedly to incompetency of the workers. Failure of the plant is expected to result in serious consequences to the entire system of agricultural developments.

that the ministry had been in constant touch with Lindy and that all possible aid was being extended.

Deprecates Rumor

The American embassy also deprecated the rumor, asserting Japanese officialdom was extending the Lindberghs every possible courtesy.

During the evening the weather cleared and grew calmer. The Lindberghs went to their plane in a lifeboat and worked on the propeller, which had suffered some damage. Later they dined with the captain of the Shinshu Maru, after which Lindbergh planned to return to the plane and possibly work throughout the night.

The Shinshu Maru sent a radio message at 7:10 p. m., indicating the plane was anchored off North Ketoi, with an additional rope run to the steamship, which was anchored some distance offshore.

The Shinshu Maru is a 2000-ton vessel of the Japanese bureau of fisheries patrol.

Forced Down

The Lindberghs, flying one of the most dangerous legs of their 7000-mile trip from Washington, D. C., to Tokyo, were forced down among the islands as dusk fell yesterday. It was the second time they had been forced to land since leaving Petropavlovsk, Siberia, for Nemuro. The first forced landing was made 25 miles from Petropavlovsk and was because of motor trouble. While Mrs. Lindbergh tapped out messages on the portable radio assuring the world they were safe, her husband repaired the motor and they were in the air again after two hours.

They had completed more than half the 900-mile flight to Japan when they ran into fog banks so heavy that Lindbergh decided to turn back. After circling about for many minutes looking for a hole in the fog, they dropped down safely off the Kurile Islands, where the "hairy Ainu" roam.

These islands, stretching from Kamchatka peninsula toward Japan, are sparsely inhabited and 600 of the people living on them are of the Ainu tribe, a half-civilized people.

A radio from the Lindberghs, through the radio of the Shinshu Maru, said they expected to complete repair of the airplane by dawn and hoped to start for Nemuro at 5 a. m., provided weather conditions were favorable.

yon on the north fork of the Merced river between Bagby and Briceburg. The canyon was considered of so little importance by state ranger Moore that he first considered passing it by until his fire line was established.

Moore decided the canyon might become menacing and the three were part of a crew of a dozen put to work in it. Companion firefighters said the flames crept up on them but they did not consider the situation at all menacing, withdrawing when necessary.

They apparently were unaware of trouble until the prolonged absence of the three was noticed. The bodies were found, burned almost beyond recognition.

Moore's theory was that the three simultaneously inhaled flame, possibly from a sudden flareup of gases beneath their feet, and were overcome, the fire then sweeping over their bodies.

Files Suit Over Fatal Car Crash

The death of Mrs. Iva Oia Leutinger after an automobile accident at Ross street and Washington avenue on June 4 was followed today by the filing of a damage suit in which Richard K. Leutinger, widow, and three children are plaintiffs. The complaint asked judgment for $2500 from Jack C. Hillis and C. C. Hillis. Injuries to Fern Leutinger, daughter of the deceased, were made the basis of a request for $2000 damages.

According to the complaint the accident happened when the car Jack Hillis was driving, which belonged to C. C. Hillis, was in a collision with the one driven by Fern Leutinger.

Other plaintiffs are Guy and Beryl Heckman Leutinger, for whom Richard Leutinger is acting as guardian for purposes of the suit.

MRS. CLARK SAYS SYMPATHY IS NOT WANTED

Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford, concluding the state's last argument to the jury, said he would finish in a very few minutes after the afternoon session of court was called.

Judge Stanley Murray was then to read a charge to the jury and that group was to take up deliberation of whether Clark murdered Spencer or shot him down in self-defense.

Ford spent the entire morning rounding up the loose ends of the case and the only excitement was contributed by Mrs. Nancy Malone Clark, wife of the defendant.

Most of the time, Ford used in playing Clark's story that he had been warned by Spencer to "lay off the underworld" in his campaign for municipal judge.

Issues growing out of Clark's race for judge, which he lost at the June elections, led to the double shooting of Spencer and Charles Crawford, politician.

"Clark told you that he was threatened by Spencer in the campaign," Ford said, "but Clark's story was false. I know Spencer never said to Clark: 'lay off the underworld.'"

"Deep in their hearts the defending attorneys and the members of the press know that Spencer never would have said a thing like that."

Then speaking of Crawford and his underworld connections when he was political boss of the city, Ford made some reference to Denver, Colo., politics. The reference was not understood in the courtroom.

"Which reminds me," said Ford without any introduction to the reminder, "how about nine years ago, the mayor of Denver cleaned up the underworld in that city as it never had been cleaned before. And he named the men. He caused a reform. Maybe Crawford had aspirations to run for mayor. I don't know."

Mrs. Clark's unexpected outburst contributed the most dramatic episode of the session.

Legion Sponsors Safety Program

A message on fire prevention will be broadcast by the California American Legion Saturday from 5:30 to 6 p. m., Pacific standard time. Details of the broadcast were announced today by Ed Kolbe, adjutant of post 131, American Legion, in Santa Ana.

Featured on the program will be Col. Charles E. Stanton, E. W. Gearhart, commander of the Legion in California; James K. Flisk, state adjutant, and the band of Zane Irwin post, of San Francisco, the champion band of the state.

The program is to be sponsored by the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific.

Dismiss Charge Of Stealing Car

Francisco Ramirez, 22, of Atwood, arrested on a charge of stealing an automobile, gained his freedom in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today, when on motion of the district attorney, the case was dismissed in furtherance of justice.

Ramirez was accused of stealing a car owned by Joe Olivera, of 314 Romney Drive, Anaheim, on August 15. The defendant is said to have proved that he was not in Anaheim on the day that the machine was taken.

TWO BOYS INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

Two small boys were reported slightly injured yesterday in automobile accidents here, both being struck when they are reported to have run out in front of cars.

Edsel Remis, of 622 East Walnut street, was run down by a truck driven by Fred C. Watkins, of 712 West Tenth street at 4:30 p. m., yesterday in front of 610 East Walnut street. He suffered a cut over an eye and minor bruises, according to a report made to the city police.

Benny Munde, 6, resident of West Fifth street, Santa Ana, was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Alpha Story, 20, of Santa Ana, Route No. 5, on West Fifth street, west of Artesia yesterday after he had run out from behind a truck, Mrs. Story reported. The child was taken to a physician's office and treated for minor cuts and bruises.

13 MOTORISTS IN SPEEDERS' COURT

Thirteen persons, arrested on speeding charges in Santa Ana, and who reside in nine different Southern California towns, appeared before Judge J. G. Mitchell, in police court here yesterday. Ten of the 13 were given fines, on pleas of guilty. Two, being juveniles, were transferred to the juvenile court, and one case was dismissed.

Those fined were: C. L. Duncan, Santa Ana, $10; Wilmont Grady, Anaheim, $10; Charles V. Carter, San Bernardino, $10; Lawrence W. Farrar, Tustin, $20; Erma Standless, Newport Beach, $10; J. J. Heying, Anaheim, $5; E. D. Davis, Long Beach, $10; Tetsuo Shragako, Corona Del Mar, $15; Clarence Johnson, Long Beach, $15.

The case against Donald Shaffer, Brea, was dismissed and the juveniles were: J. W. Purdue, 2101 North Baker street, Santa Ana, and Jack Ryan, Placentia.

C. E. Dessery, Wife Leave for Parley

C. E. Dessery, general agent for the Aetna Life Insurance and Affiliated Companies, Santa Ana, and wife left here last night on the Union Pacific Los Angeles Limited en route to Hartford, Conn. Mr. Dessery will attend a convention of the Aetna Co. at Hartford and will then tour several of the eastern states and return to Santa Ana via Jasper National park, Prince Rupert, B. C., also Victoria and Seattle.

Mr. Dessery won the trip in a contest of selling insurance along with about 35 other Aetna agents in Southern California. The Union Pacific operated two special cars out of Los Angeles through to Hartford on account of this movement.

SEA SCOUTS OF ORANGE COUNTY IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY ON GET TWO BOATS BEACH STREET

With the arrival of two boats that were donated by the United States Navy, Orange County Sea Scouts now have a fleet of three vessels. It was announced today by Harrison E. White, scout executive. The two additional ships were secured through the efforts of Col. M. B. Wellington president of the Orange County Scout Council and H. H. Williamson.

The boats arrived at San Pedro recently and were brought under their own power to Newport Harbor, where they will be stationed. They came here from Mare Island and were loaned by the commander of the transport Henderson. One of the boats is a 21 foot whale boat for sailing and the other is a motor-sailor with a length of 24 feet. With the other 21 foot motor boat, local scouts are believed to have one of the finest "navies" in the state.

Nazarene Group To Entertain At Placentia Meet

The Young People's society of the Santa Ana Nazarene church will present a musical program at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Placentia Nazarene church as the opening feature in a four day convention to be held at the church. It was announced today by the Rev. M. R. Dutton, pastor of the Placentia church. A brief business meeting will be held at the conclusion of the musical program.

Tomorrow night the Young People's society of the Long Beach church will present the program and the Rev. U. E. Harding, pastor of the Santa Ana church will deliver the sermon. Meetings will also be held Sunday at 6:30 p. m. at which time a special program is being arranged. Evelyn Harding will be the principal speaker at this meeting.

Tomorrow night's meeting will be held in conjunction with the regular monthly Orange county zone meeting. Representatives from various cities in the county will be present.

1931 IS REWARDING CAREFUL SAVERS

A SOUND RULE FOR SAVINGS...

"Keep your principal intact and steadily employed at an adequate rate of interest." That is the simple rule which successful savers never forget.

Pacific States Savings has enabled three generations of conservative men and women to follow this tested financial formula.

Their funds here have weathered the worst nationwide financial storms with never a dollar of shrinkage or loss. Their interest has been paid with the regularity of clockwork. And while this institution invites funds on an investment rather than a temporary basis, it has always met its customers' emergencies by the payment of savings in full without notice.

If such a record earns your confidence, we shall welcome your savings large or small. You may start with as little as $3. Save as you please. Stop when you please. And enjoy the advantage of 5% interest compounded semi-annually.

Or you may place income funds (in multiples of $100), to earn a slightly higher rate. On such funds, interest is payable on any semi-annual dates you select... and begins the day your savings are received. Send for our Statement.

ORANGE COUNTY HEALTH CAMP BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE BUSY WEEK OF FEATURE PROGRAMS

BY ROBERT GALE

On the evening of Tuesday, the eleventh, we were entertained by singing and dancing by the following group of girl pupils of Claire Cotant's studio of dancing: Martha Grace Powell, Gloria Clem, Mary Lucile Walker, Jane Cooner, Lavene Parks, Mary Louise Lemberger, Velma Stroud, Barbara Young, Adla and Mae Nokayama and Loren McMillan. The program was sponsored by Mrs. Blanche Young. Mrs. Young is one of our best friends and we wish to thank her for her interest in the Camp, in us, and, especially, for the entertainment. We also wish to thank the girls who took part in the program. There was dancing, singing, recitations and several comic skits.

Wednesday, the nineteenth, Mrs. James Irvine, Jr., gave us a beach party at her private beach. Several of the alumni were invited.

Last Sunday, we were pleased to have so many visitors and interested friends. Mr. G. I. Tella, Santa Ana barber, relieved us of some of our hair. We think he did it pretty neat too for one man to cut our hair, there being 29 of us. Of course we didn't let Mr. Tella get away then for we gave him a chicken dinner afterwards.

Three Go Home
There are not 29 of us now, though, because 'Bubs' Robert Glover and his brother, Francis, and Bonnie Mae Davis went home Sunday afternoon.

Saturday we went to the park again and had boat rides "Mother Meagher" came out too, and... well, Jesslyn is going to tell us about that.

"On Saturday, 'Mother Meagher' took six of us girls from camp up to the place where the dam is being built. One of the men told us what they were doing. He said that they had been working since five o'clock in the morning until then, which was four o'clock in the afternoon on putting a big pipe through a tunnel in the hillside. All the work had to be done from the outside. They had to join the pipes together on the outside and then push them from different ends of the tunnel to make them connect and then they had to shoot cement through three inch pipes to fill in the six extra inches around the pipe. Then he told us to go around to the other end of the tunnel where they were building the tower. While we were walking around to the tower, we had to be careful not to get in front of any tractors. We saw trucks dumping dirt and then a tractor pulling a heavy piece of machinery to pack the dirt. We certainly did enjoy being up there.

and were sorry to come home, but we soon forgot that because when we got home, we had one of our famous watermelon parties.

Watermelon Party
Speaking of watermelon parties, Harold Kieselhart is going to tell us about them:

"Our watermelons grow in the avocado orchard. J. A. Paris is growing them for us. We have watermelon parties about every week. They taste good whenever we have them. Some of the children yelled till they got two pieces. The bees came around. We fed the birds as fast as the pig. He eats the rinds as fast as we eat the watermelons. All the watermelons are red. The seeds are white instead of black. If we spill any watermelon, we have to clean it up because we do not encourage flies in the Children's Health Camp."

We are still enjoying our work with the tools. Most of us are making airplanes. Russell Lamoreaux started one, and so we all decided to make them. Leonard Kreidt is making the largest one, his being about two feet long. After the last beach party, Eldon Eastman decided to make a surf board. It was hard, as he says, to find a board that would suit the purpose. But we made the best of what we had and that, combined with hard work, made a nice board in the end. Eldon is going to tell you about it.

"To make my surf board, I used a redwood board. There were two holes in it, but I cut two plugs of the same shape and plugged them up. Then I planed it and cut the shape. The worst part of making it was sandpapering it. This calls for elbow grease. I painted it Chinese red and varnished it red mahogany."

Thomas Jury Theft Trial Is Started

Thomas Joy was on trial today before Superior Judge G. K. Seovel on a grand theft charge. He is accused of stealing approximately $120 from one of the Fullerton Safeway stores while he was manager of the meat department.

The prosecution, handled by Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, contends that the amount represented the department's receipts for three days and was in the neighborhood of $239.

Morrison Issues Bench Warrants

Two bench warrants were issued in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court for two men, charged with non-support of their families.

One was for Frank Garcia, of Olive, who according to the complaint in his case failed to provide for his seven children whose ages are 11, 8, 7, 6, 4, 2 and 1. The other was for H. G. O'Donnell, formerly of Santa Ana.

Both men had been in court here before and had promised to make regular payments. It was said. Their failure to do so constitutes contempt of court, which caused issuance of the bench warrants.

Youths To Answer Burglary Charges

Roy Underwood, 20, and A. R. Randles, 21, Long Beach youths, were held to answer to the superior court from Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today on charges of burglary. Bail of $2500 was demanded in each case, but was not made.

The men were arrested by Huntington Beach officers and accused of breaking into the Charles F. Kerr service station at Fifth and Olive streets, Huntington Beach, on August 17.

Although the service station was entered, according to the police, nothing was reported stolen.

Service Station Entered, Robbed

Thieves who broke into the Krahling Service station at 2311 North Main street early today stole 10 tires and 10 tubes and five boxes of cigars, according to a report made to the city police department.

Entrance into the station was made after a lock on the front door had been jimmied. Persons residing in the neighborhood declared they heard a disturbance in the station at 2:30 a. m. today.

Rome and Berlin are now connected entirely by an underground telephone cable.

SUNDAY SPEAKER ANNOUNCES TOPIC

Judge A. R. Webber of the common pleas court in Elyria, Ohio, who is to be speaker of the evening Sunday night for the union services at the First M. E. church, has announced his subject for the evening as "The March of Democracy in the Christian Era."

Through a misunderstanding it was announced yesterday that Judge Webber would speak at union services in Birch park. The services will be held in the First M. E. church.

Reunions and Picnics

The annual picnic and reunion of former residents of Wichita, Kan., will be held in Bixby park, Long Beach, on August 22, it was learned today.

Deputy Sheriffs Confiscate Beer

Sheriff's Officers Dean and McKelvey were called to Stanton last night when they were told a fight was in progress at the home of Marie Contreras.

The fight was all over when they got there, but not for Marie. She was arrested on a charge of possession of liquor and brought to the county jail. In her home under the bed and elsewhere, officers reported they found 12 bottles of beer.

According to the report of the officers, Pat Burke, of Anaheim, was injured in a fight which took place in the house before the officers arrived.

The beer was contained in 96 quart bottles and 26 pint bottles it was said.

Radio telephone service between Europe and the Canary Islands has been inaugurated.

RADIO PARTY FOR KIDDIES HAPPY EVENT

A radio birthday party for little Coleen Billips, aged 4, and June Rae Carter, aged 5, broadcast yesterday on the children's period from KREG under the direction of Lorene Croddy was a decided success, according to the guests who were present in the studio and the program director.

A large birthday cake with four candles on one side for Coleen and five candles on the other side for June Rae was one of the main attractions of this happy event and the candles were lighted while each little girl made a wish.

Each of the little guests were introduced by Miss Croddy and each child responded with a song or reading. Following the program all the guests went to Miss Croddy's studio, where the birthday cake and ice cream were served.

The little guests of Coleen and June Rae were Carlos Romer, Constance Elliot, Sally Andrews, Bobby Lynn Bergey, Dixie Girl Luke, Patricia Butler, Emily Mae McPherson, Beverly Givens, Patsy Jean Billups, Phyllis Sandon, Mary Anne Sandon, Rosemary Harp, Susan McPherson, Carol Pemberton, Rodney Parcel, Jackie Creamer, Jackie Dietler and Chester Dietler.

Grown up guests were the Mesdames Maude Putnam, M. T. Luke, E. D. Bergey, Whittise Billups, Maureen Andrews and Gunning Butler.

Mary Burke King In Book Review

Reviewing the Book League of America's August selection, Mary Burke King will be on the air tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock over radio station KREG for 30 minutes. The book to be reviewed is "God in the Straw Pen" by John Fort.

The author has built his story around the Georgia Up-Country of 1830. He has produced one of the most talked of books of the year.

KREG STAR

One of KREG's favorite entertainers who sings every afternoon from 2:30 to 3 o'clock is Jesse Morlock, "The Girl Hill Billy," who delights many listeners during her program.

SPANISH HOUR WILL FEATURE VOCAL NUMBERS

On the Spanish hour program over KREG from 9 to 10 p. m. today Senorita Jesuita Gaona will be presented to the radio audience in a series of vocal selections. She has a large repertoire including "La Estrellita," "La Paloma," "Las Golondrinas" and "Cielito Lindo."

Senorita Enriquez, Armendariz, popular Santa Ana singer, also will be featured, according to an announcement by Senor Guillermo Orozco, director.

The Spanish hour is a daily KREG feature and has had an enthusiastic reception. Since the program started, on August 8 many letters have been received commending the entertainment value of the program and their educational worth for those who are interested in Spanish language and music.

Capable singers have been introduced, presenting romantic songs of old Mexico, Argentina and Spain. The popularity of these selections has been evidenced by the large number of requests phoned to the studio during the broadcasts.

MODERN TRIO ON REGULAR PROGRAM

Beginning tonight at 10:30 the Modern Trio will be heard from KREG each Monday and Thursday nights during the week.

This popular trio playing Hawaiian music and popular melodies of the day was formerly called the Kaufman Trio.

The Modern Trio consists of two guitars and clarinet and has been heard on Kreg for some time in the past every Saturday night at 7 o'clock.

Their many listeners will be glad to hear that this organization is scheduled twice a week according to KREG's program director.

LORENE CRODDY ON AIR TONIGHT

Lorene Croddy will conduct a special program of her adult students tonight at 8 o'clock, from KREG, in a diversified arrangement of Negro music.

The program will feature trio numbers sung by Miss Alta Fisher, Miss Betty Paul, and Miss Lorene Croddy, and Miss Fisher will play selected piano numbers.

In addition to the musical part of the program, Miss Croddy will give an interesting explanation and historical sketch of Negro music, how it originated, and its interpretations.

KREG NOTES

Another of the interesting Seiberling Singers' Programs will be presented this evening from KREG at 7:30—an electrical transcription.

The Children's Hour conducted by Lorene Croddy tomorrow morning at 11:30 will present a program by the following little artists: Bobby Lynn Bergey, songs; Patricia Butler, readings; Wesley Hunter, readings; Howard Spohn, yodeling. Other artists on the program will include Norbert and Deloras Kinzel, Glen Leighton and David Hunter, Miss Croddy will tell another Uncle Remus story.

Tonite is 4H nite on KREG at 6:45 when the weekly program of the Santa Ana 4H Club will be presented.

The musical Moll family, who have entertained Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 are on a vacation of two weeks, according to the Program Director but will broadcast again after they have returned.

"The Tenor with a Tear in His Voice," Johnny Maxwell is not really sad, but enjoys singing and entertaining his audience as much as they like to hear him. He sings tonite at 7 o'clock, accompanied by Art Cannon, who will play several solos on the piano.

A half hour program of classical recordings will be presented tonite from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

"What... would happen if I had to go it alone?"

THESE citrus groves of ours are so much of a contrast to earlier days that I often wonder... suppose I and every other citrus grower still had to go it alone!

"We had a taste of it thirty-eight years ago. No standardization. No market for our fruit. Shipping in the dark. Cities begging for fruit one week; carloads rotting on the sidings the next. Price cutting, cut-throat competition, bad luck to your neighbor. Red ink on the ledger. A good crop was a disaster.

"No, I wouldn't care to go it alone again. I am convinced that the cooperative principle is right 'for the good of the industry.' And if the principle is right I want to get the most out of it for my own individual good. I've proved that I could logically expect—that I average the highest returns by marketing with the majority."

The facts are that the organization of the California Fruit Growers Exchange marked a turning point in the industry. Growers faced the facts, pooled crops and intelligence, and began working together for mutual benefit. One-fourth of the growers joined immediately. The majority waited for proof of a dollars and cents advantage in joining. Now over three-fourths of the growers belong because the Exchange averages the highest returns for their crops and enjoys the lowest marketing costs.

Interested non-member growers—Learn the facts. The manager of your nearest District Exchange or Exchange Association will be glad to answer your questions and acquaint you with the many reasons why over 75% of California and Arizona citrus growers find Exchange membership profitable. Or write, Growers Service Bureau, Box 530, Station C, Los Angeles, California.

WHAT THE EXCHANGE IS: The California Fruit Growers Exchange is a non-profit organization of more than 12,500 citrus fruit growers, producing over 75% of the California and Arizona citrus crop, operated by and for them on a cooperative basis. Its object is to develop the national and international market for its Oranges, Lemons and Grapefruit, and to provide a marketing organization that will sell the fruit of its members most advantageously and at least expense. Receipts from sales, less only actual cost of operation, are returned to growers. Applications are received through all the Exchange's 214 local packing associations, 23 District Exchanges, or at the central office in Los Angeles.

Late News From Orange County Communities

WATER PLANS OUTLINED FOR SERVICE CLUB

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 20.—Orange county can recover considerable water by "spreading" in the Richfield district, according to M. N. Thompson, member of the engineering board which has made a survey and report to the supervisors on a water conservation and flood-control project to cost $10,000,000.

Thompson addressed members of the Harbor Service club yesterday and in reply to a question said that the county had been all set to try out the check dam system in the Richfield area last year, but no water came and therefore the efficacy of that plan is still in doubt.

The project so far reported on to the supervisors does not include the Trabuco canyon work, which is now being investigated. J. P. Greeley asked Thompson about this and suggested that a system of levees would be more satisfactory than a dam. Thompson said that water can be saved there, but at a greater cost per acre foot than at other points covered by the plan.

Yesterday's club program was in charge of R. L. Patterson, who introduced Thompson.

Carl W. Wantz, who lived in the Philippines for 30 years, but who recently came to live in California, painted a dark picture of his former home. The Chinese, he said, dominate everything there, including trade and politics, and the people of California do not know what graft is—unless they have been in the Philippines.

Dr. Conrad Richter, president of the club, in calling on Wantz, said he was opposed to the proposal to grant the Philippines their independence. "I would say," Wantz declared, "to give it to them. It means nothing to the United States and some day we will lose them anyway."

Asked as to the cause of conditions there, Wantz blamed it on the attitude of the federal administration. The Philippines for the Filipinos, he said, is not more reasonable than America for the Indians.

REALTOR LEAVES FOR SOUTH SEAS

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 20.—After selling $297,000 worth of property in El Bayo Balboa tract here since July 3, Otto G. Wilder of Otto G. Wilder & Co., realty brokers, left yesterday for a year's trip to the south seas in his yacht, the Katedna, which has been anchored in local waters from time to time.

According to Murry Brophy, who is managing the company's affairs here during the absence of Wilder, 60 per cent of the nearly $300,000 worth of sales in the last six weeks have been cash transactions. Plans have been approved for six different bay front residences.

One of these is to cost $25,000, he said, and another $15,000. Brophy plans to build a home for himself on one of the bay front lots.

Wilder is accompanied on his south seas trip by Dr. Charles W. Dwan of Los Angeles and a crew of three. He expects to visit Tahiti, Fiji, the Philippines, Guam, Samoa, Australia, New Zealand and other parts of the southern hemisphere and will return via Hawaii.

Crowd Expected For Mission Tea

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Aug. 20.—Reservations are coming in rapidly for the patio tea, to be given next Saturday by the mission auxiliary for the benefit of the poor of the parish. Bridge will be played under the corridors of the mission. Refreshments will be served. Jose Arla's Spanish Troubadors will play during the afternoon.

The auxiliary, organized for welfare work in the community, will undertake, in addition to the relief work with the poor, upkeep of the mission parochial school. A new class room has been added and part of the proceeds from the bridge party will be used towards furnishing the new room.

CHURCH GROUP PREPARES FOR FALL ACTIVITY

COSTA MESA, Aug. 20.—Preparation to a series of meetings to be held monthly for the betterment of the Sunday school of the Community church, a group of teachers and church workers met in the chapel of the church Tuesday evening. The Rev. A. F. Haase presided.

Sunday, September 13, was decided upon as the date for the annual Sunday school rally day. All Sunday school classes above the junior department will have special parts on the program. The following Sunday, September 20, will be designated as membership drive day.

Plans were talked of for the annual promotion day exercises, September 27.

The Rev. Wilfred Rowntree, one of the leading teachers in the summer daily vacation Bible school, presented each teacher present with a copy of his book, "The Tabernacle."

Among the Sunday school workers present were the Rev. G. W. Brown, Sunday school superintendent; Raymond Eastman, assistant superintendent; Ed Bennett, superintendent of the junior department; Mrs. H. B. McMurtry, superintendent of the primary department; Mrs. D. Gibson, in charge of the cradle roll department; Mrs. Maude E. Davis, Sunday school treasurer; Lloyd Willcutt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mary Bennett, president of the missionary society; and teachers, Mrs. J. Holliday, Mrs. R. G. Williams, Mrs. Edgar Chaplin, Mrs. Albert Dudek, Mrs. Fred Myers, Mrs. W. W. Carruthers, Mrs. Alice Eastman, Edgar Chaplin, T. J. Reynolds, Charles Kesel, A. M. Nelson, H. B. McMurtry, church financial secretary; Mrs. Ruth Lenski, Miss Phyllis Greeley, Miss Doris McMurtry and W. Rowntree.

CHURCH PLANNING FALL ACTIVITIES

BREA, Aug. 20.—Following a meeting of the recently organized advisory board of the Congregational church here, definite plans for renewed activities in the various branches of the church have been made. Without a resident pastor for three months, until the coming of the Rev. D. F. Gaylord on August 1, progress in the church has been slow.

October 4 has been set as the date for a Sunday school rally, with Mrs. C. C. Crookshank and Mrs. T. Elwood Moore in charge of the program for the primary department and Mrs. J. L. McMeekin and the Rev. Mr. Gaylord taking charge of the activities of the junior and intermediate departments in that event.

On the afternoon and evening of September 1 the annual Sunday school picnic will be held at Anaheim park. J. H. Greist has been appointed to take charge of transportation and to see that the ice cream is provided. Mrs. Greist will head the supper committee. Mrs. R. M. Ross and her class will have charge of drinks and the Rev. Mr. Gaylord and Howard Robinson will provide interesting games and other features of entertainment for the group.

Grade School At Spanish Village Opens Sept. 14

SAN CLEMENTE, Aug. 20.—The San Clemente grammar school will open its fall term September 14. Ten Acres of the school board announces that plans have been made to accommodate 75 students. Mrs. H. Vernon again is principal, assisted in teaching duties by Mrs. Ray Barnett and Mrs. Caroline Thompson.

Three dozen new desks will be available for pupils. The school has been painted and redecorated and many new curtains hung. A hand ball court has been constructed, the court secured from the San Juan Capistrano union high school by Dr. J. B. Lape.

GLENN BYRAM AND L. A. GIRL ARE MARRIED

WESTMINSTER, Aug. 20.—A beautiful and impressive marriage service, of interest locally, took place at Highland Park when Miss Ethel Hillis, of Highland Park, became the bride of Glenn Alden Byram, of Los Angeles, and a native of this place.

The scene of the wedding was the lawn of the home of Mr. Lyle Hillis, brother of the bride. Chinese lanterns in the trees around threw a soft light over the guests seated in chairs and facing the steps, over the foot of which hung a large bell of pink silk-lined crepe paper.

The musical program preceding the ceremony included the vocal solo, "At Dawning," by Lyle Hillis, and strains of instrumental music, played by friends of the bride, Miss Mary Borden, pianist, and George Yammer, violinist, and his sons, George Yammer Jr., who played the flute.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl D. Hillis, the ring ceremony being used. The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Hillis, a sister of the bride, was dressed in pink silk crepe and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The small daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Earl D. Hillis, was the pretty little flower girl, dressed in white.

The bride was charming in white silk crepe with long bridal veil held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of gardenias, lilies of the valley and maidenhair fern.

The groom is active in church work and is the sister of the Rev. Earl D. Hillis, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Bishop, Calif., who supplied the Presbyterian church at Westminster several years ago.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Byram, of Westminster, and is an employee in the department of water and power in Los Angeles.

It was an interesting coincidence that the date of the wedding was that of the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Mack, pioneers, Westminster, whose marriage occurred August 14, 1853, 78 years ago in New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Byram departed for a northern trip. On their return they will make their home in Highland Park.

JACK DEMPSEY SCORES K. O. IN 'COMEBACK' GO

RENO, Nev., Aug. 20.—(INS)—Jack Dempsey may never again be heavyweight champion of the world, but it would be hard to convince Reno of that today.

For, returning to the ring after an absence of four years, hampered by "pillowcases" in the shape of 16-ounce gloves, the Manassa Mauler displayed enough of the old time form that made him famous to knock out Jack Beasley, Oakland, Cal., heavyweight, in the second round of their scheduled four-round exhibition bout here last night.

Beasley made two previous trips to the floor in the round, staying down for counts of 8 and 9, before he ran into the ex-champion's left which sent the elevator down for the third time to stay.

In the first round Beasley had been the aggressor, landing several hard punches as Dempsey boxed cautiously, apparently feeling out his opponent.

The Mauler weighed 199 when he entered the ring.

When Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, who was also scheduled to go two rounds with the ex-champion, failed to show up, as asserted because of two fractured ribs, Beasley, after a short rest period, gamely returned to box a third round with Dempsey.

Sixteen hundred fans viewed the performance, jamming the arena to capacity. More than 5000 were turned away, it was estimated.

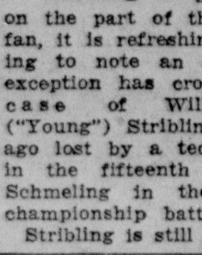

SPORTS

In the prize fight racket when a man on top he's a hero; when he begins to flop he's a bum. Once he starts to slip, and the end of his career seems near, his fair-weather friends desert him like rats scurrying from a sinking ship.

Almost every fighter of note has observed this shallow trait among the hangers-on and the raffish of the fight game. Even such a popular man as Jack Dempsey has experienced it. When he lost the championship that night in the rain in Philadelphia to Gene Tunney he was deserted by many of his "friends" when he returned to his hotel room. A few loyal fellows like "Jerry the Greek" and Gus Wilson, the trainer, were about the only ones around to comfort him.

Gene Tunney was too smart ever to place much reliance in the rank and file of fight fans who buzz around the training camps and slap the champ or the challenger on the back, if allowed. Tunney always had plenty of friends and still has. But when he achieved the championship he cut loose from the raffish of the fight game, knowing their friendship was of no account. This hurt their feelings but Tunney never cared. Why should he? They had nothing to give him.

In view of the shallow attitude on the part of the average fight fan, it is refreshing and stimulating to note an exception. This exception has cropped up in the case of William Lawrence ("Young") Stribling, who not long ago lost by a technical knockout in the fifteenth round to Max Schmeling in their heavyweight championship battle in Cleveland. Stribling is still an idol in Georgia, however, his southern friends haven't deserted him just because he dropped a fight. He may not return to the ring until next year but when he does the folks down below the Mason and Dixon line will be rooting for him just as strongly as ever.

Not long ago in Macon, Ga., nearly 200 loyal and admiring friends of Stribling gathered around a banquet table and honored "W. L." in defeat. An atmosphere that well might cause a tugging at the heartstrings hung over the assemblage. These folks wanted to show Stribling that just because he lost to Schmeling was no reason why he should think for a moment that his old friends had deserted him. It was one of the finest things ever done in the grim business of boxing. It was so unusual that it didn't seem to have any part in the game at all.

Applause shook the room when speakers pointed out the plucky and courageous manner in which Stribling went down fighting—his gameness in defeat. He was still Georgia's champion, the speakers wanted Stribling to know.

Stribling's handsome face was a study as he listened to these remarks. There was a suspicious quiver to his lips. A feel of warmth and happiness must have welled up in his heart. His "Pa" was there, and so was his "Ma," and his wife, Clara. They, of course, were proud of Stribling as if he had won the championship. The turnout was rather unexpected to all the Striblings.

Finally Stribling got to his feet. He is a good talker, a good looking, dark-haired chap with a pleasing appearance. He tried to be witty—and he was, but he couldn't conceal the deep down feeling that he experienced in the knowledge that these folks present were really friends—the type of friends you seem never to encounter in the fight game.

"Pa" Stribling made a talk, too. Even "Pa" used to public appearances, was affected by the evidences of warm friendship. In discussing the fight, "Pa" said he was like the Negro who was about to be hung, and when asked if he had something to say he replied: "Well, this is gonna be a lesson to me."

The father-manager indicated that his son would not give up the fight game but that, after a complete rest from competition for months, he would start back on the road to the top. His son, even though he has fought nearly 400 battles, still is a young man. Time will assuage the disappointment he suffered as a result of his failure to succeed when he had his biggest opportunity.

BETTY NUTTHALL JO'S RIVAL AT FOREST HILLS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Play in the 44th annual women's national tennis singles championship will be devoted to "catching up."

The "catching up" was necessitated by the torrential rains of yesterday which brought an end to the play when but five of the eight third round matches were completed.

Today's schedule calls for Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del. to oppose Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron of Great Britain; Mrs. Sarah Fairley of Boston to meet Miss Phyllis Mudford of Great Britain,

'Red' Cooke, Ace Gridder, Passes Away

Warren ("Red") Cooke, star end on Santa Ana high school football team of 1926-27-28, died at the Long Beach Community hospital last night as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident August 4. He was 20 years old.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Cooke, formerly of Santa Ana, who now reside at 20 Artesia street, Long Beach.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday at 10 a. m. in St. Matthew's Catholic church, Seventh and Temple streets, in Long Beach. Burial will be made in Sunnyvale cemetery, Long Beach.

Cooke suffered a fractured skull when the automobile in which he was riding ran off a bluff at the end of a blind street. His companion, Jack Smith of Long Beach, was not seriously injured.

Cooke was All-Coast Preparatory league end for the Saints in 1928. Last year he played end for the Santa Clara freshmen. During spring practice Coach "Clipper" Smith had used him at running guard on the Santa Clara varsity.

The Jessup-Shepherd-Barron match has but one set to go, as two sets were completed before yesterday's rain. Mrs. Jessup won the opening chapter, 8-6, and dropped the second, 6-5.

Today's winners will join Mrs. Helen Mills Moody, Miss Helen Jacobs, Miss Dorothy Weisel, all of California, and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittinghall of Great Britain in the quarter-final round.

The championship round will be played Sunday.

Vines, Perry In Finals Of Casino Play

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—(UP)—Ellsworth Vines, lanky California youth, and Frederick J. Perry, British Davis Cup player, advanced into the finals of the annual Newport Casino tennis tournament today.

Vines eliminated John Van Ryn, 6-3, 7-9, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, while Perry won by default from Sidney Wood, United States Davis Cup player.

Wood developed a leg cramp in the fifth set of his match with Perry and had to be escorted to the clubhouse. Perry had a point score of 4030 on the set and match-game at the time of Wood's injury. The score 6-3, 5-7, 2-6, 6-1, 6-5.

CITY LEAGUE CLUBS NEAR END OF RACE

Games tonight, tomorrow and Tuesday will complete the second half of the Santa Ana City Night Baseball league and clear the way for a three-out-of-five series for the 1931 championship between the first and second half winners.

Tonight's twin bill matches the Spurgeon M. E. Souths and A's Auto Service at 7 o'clock and the Baptists with the Public Playgrounds at 8.

The Moose meet Monroe's pharmacy Friday at 7, with the Presbyterians and the 20-30 club colliding in the afterpiece.

Tuesday's windup pairs the Spurgeon M. E. Souths and the 20-30 club at 7, and Hill and Carden and the Public Playgrounds at 8.

MRS. MOODY SNIFFS RAIN, SNUFFS OUT TITLE HOPES OF BRITISH WOMAN STAR

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Competition being the life of the sports box office as well as of trade, it's a good thing the Women's National tennis singles championship is being played at Forest Hills, and not on the island of Pago Pago where, according to Mister Somerset Maugham, it rains 25 hours out of the 24.

For Helen Mills Moody, devastating as she is in dry weather, is just 10 times as invincible when there's a hint of rain in the air. If you don't believe this, then you should have been at Forest Hills yesterday and watched the great Moody in action against Joan Ridley of Great Britain, one of the world's finest players.

Mrs. Moody won the first set,

GROVE ON WAY TO ALL-TIME MOUND RECORD

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (U. P. Staff Correspondent)
CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(UP)—Robert Moses Grove, who hails from Lonsconing, Maryland, and who has been pitching for the Philadelphia Athletics since 1925, today seemed on the threshold of annexing more laurels in a single season than any other major league pitcher in baseball annals.

Grove won his 16th straight game yesterday when he pitched the Athletics to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox at Comiskey park. His season's record is now, won 25 and lost 3 for an average of .875.

Among the records within Grove's reach are:

1.—American league record for most consecutive games won which he tied yesterday. The record of 16 was made by Joe Wood, Boston Red Sox, and Walter Johnson, Washington, in 1912.

2.—Major league record for most consecutive games won, which is 19, made by Tim Lincecum in 1888 and equaled by "Rube" Marquard in 1912, both pitching for the New York Giants.

3.—Highest percentage of games won and lost made by Joe Wood in 1912 when he won 34 games and lost 5 for an average of .872.

4.—Leading the American league in won and lost percentage three years in succession, a feat no pitcher in either league ever accomplished.

5.—Become the first major league pitcher working regularly to finish the season with a percentage above .900.

May Win 24 Straight

The Athletics have 41 games left to play and if Grove pitches every fifth game he will have a chance to work in eight more games. If he won them all he would finish the season with 24 straight victories and a total of 33 won and 2 lost.

Both of Grove's defeats have strings attached to them. Washington beat him in the first week of the season on an error and the White Sox trimmed him in an extra-inning game June 5 after he was rushed into the box as a reliever.

Connie Mack bought Grove from Baltimore for a reported price of $105,000 at the close of the 1924 International league season. In his first year with the Athletics Grove lost 12 games and won 10. When he first broke in he tried to rely solely on his dazzling speed, but soon found out that he needed to mix 'em up. Under Mack's expert tutelage he soon learned to get the maximum benefit from his fast delivery.

PIPING 'EM OFF

The second game of the "Little World Series" will be run off at Anaheim tomorrow night.

Approximately 600 tickets for reserved seats in choice sections will go on sale at the Victor Walker sporting goods establishment here tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

The third game is scheduled for Santa Ana's Bowl Monday. Tickets for that contest will be available at Walker's Saturday morning.

The batteries Friday will likely be the same as last night. Joe Corneliuss deserves the call for the Stars and he will have to answer it any how because little Earl Morrill, No. 2 man of the staff, reported last night with an infected ankle, swollen and inflamed. Morrill thinks he will be ready by Monday but that is doubtful.

The Stars are cruelly crippled for such an important series, did well to make the opener close. With Wilcox, Mene and Morrill all casualties, the club is in its poorest physical condition of the year. Manager George Lackaye had to use five men—the Daleys, Nelson, Bell and Fulson—at strange positions, with Ray Smith the only reservist available. If Corneliuss had suffered a bad night and been pounded from pillar to post he would have had to see it through because no player other than Morrill is eligible to pitch under National Night league rules governing the series.

Mene, who had his nose broken in the Westminster game, says he will be in condition to play tomorrow, but Lackaye probably will give the speedy French boy the "sneak-rest" to put him in better shape. Mene suffered a bad break and lost a lot of blood before they could get him to a physician.

Fulson turned in a bang-up game at second base, handling several hard chances perfectly. Bell did well at first, too.

Max Moody, the only Anaheim boy on Anaheim's whole squad, batted in hard luck. He hit three on the nose to the outfield but none of them fell safely.

Moody robbed "Memph" Hill of a sure single in the first inning. Hill lined sharply over third base but Moody, playing for him, made a dandy shoestring catch for the out.

The umpires got along pretty well. Jack Dillon's judgment back of the pan was questioned occasionally by both pitchers but on the whole neither side had cause to complain.

Manager George Pace is fidgety about Anaheim's pitchers. Errington was hurling no-hit ball but Pace said "Chico" Sabella in the bullpen all evening.

Anaheim has now won 19 league games.

'FUZZY' STOPS S. A. IN 3-HIT MOUND CLASSIC

After all there isn't much of baseball but throwing it if you can throw it like "Fuzzy" Errington.

"Fuzzy's" mound magic, something beautiful to behold, was what there was in Anaheim, gloom in Santa Ana today.

With Errington verging on a new hit game, the mighty Valencias won from Santa Ana, 4-1, in the first of a four-out-of-seven series for the National Night league championship here last night.

"Fuzzy" made all the experts, who are pegging Anaheim to win the playoff in five games or less, look good. He simply never gave the crippled Stars a chance to get started. His slow-and-steady kept the defending champions off balance, kept power out of their swings. The resulting feeble popups and weak infield bouncers were easily handled by an alert infield that patrolled beats in almost errorless style, handling 16 chances.

Cornelius hurled well. "Jumpin' Joe" Cornelius, Santa Ana's hope in the series, pitched a sweet game of baseball himself. He didn't get any of the breaks and if he had they probably wouldn't have done him much good, because the Stars couldn't make any runs off Errington.

A capacity crowd of 3000, perhaps more, saw the dope run true to form. Every seat in the house was occupied and the rim of the Bowl was crammed too. "Tightwad Hill" had its numerous customers, of course.

It was a "Santa Ana crowd," for the whole circuit seems to be hoping for a Santa Ana victory, but the sentimentalists didn't have an opportunity to exercise their lungs so potent was Errington's dispensing.

Anaheim scored three times in the fourth, once in the fifth. They got some help to make the first batch.

Pop Fly Hits Wire
Scott's relay to the plate had Kohler by a safe margin but Catcher Ed Daley dropped the ball and the first run was across the plate. Rice hoisted a harmless fly toward center field and it went for a double when the ball hit an illumination wire and dropped back of second base. Bell swallowed Errington's foul fly for the second out but "Red" Lemon's rife single to right was hard enough to score Higgins and Rice. Schuchardt then arched to Hill for the final out.

Scholder walked in the fifth, went to second after Nelson caught Moody's long fly to left and scored on Preble's single to right, after Kohler popped to Fulson.

Anaheim had two other chances to score, failed first when Leavitt Daley made a dazzling shoestring catch with two on and two out; failed later when Cornelius fanned Scholder and Moody in succession with a runner on third base.

Daley Makes Great Catch
Daley's magnificent catch came in the third inning when Cornelius opened impressively with strikes.

MISS MEYER IS PARTY HONOREE IN MONTEBELLO

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—Miss Lois Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Meyer, 540 East Washington street, was the incentive for a delightful shower given by two college friends, the Misses Ruth Hillier of South Pasadena, and Florence Dutcher of Montebello, in the home of the latter. Miss Meyer is to be married to Russell Ritchie of Los Angeles, at the First Methodist church in Orange Saturday evening.

A lovely color scheme of green, yellow and white was carried out for the interesting affair, and bridge was the diversion of the afternoon. High score was made by Miss Mary Flanagan, and second high by Mrs. Esther Thomas. When the refreshment course was served, the green, yellow and white color scheme was stressed in the menu, and ices were molded in the form of billing doves.

A chest of gifts was presented to Miss Meyer. The chest was in white and was bound with bands of gold, while a miniature bride and groom were placed on the cover which had the array of handsome gifts. The honor guest found the key which opened the chest by following white ribbon streamers to a bouquet of flowers.

Guests were, from San Diego, Mrs. Esther Thomas and Miss Ruth Chase; from Lake Arrowhead, the Misses Frances and Marie Thilo and Marie Brezel; from Los Angeles, the Misses Dorothy Slum, Glenna Elliott, Florence White, Phillis Mayo, Elsie Wickramheim and Mesdames Jessie Mae Campbell, Alice Trejillo, Henry Jennis, Ada Vans; from Pasadena, the Misses Margaret Hadley, Mary Flanagan, Ruth Hillier, Faith Osborn and Mrs. R. C. Hillier; from Orange, the Misses Ruth Reed, Florence Riddle, Irma Meyer, Lois Meyer and Mrs. E. L. Meyer; Miss Betty Smith from Ontario; and from Montebello, the Misses Florence Dutcher, Elizabeth Goodrich and Melva Dutcher, and Mrs. V. J. Steele.

Villa Park Club Members Prepare For Fall Meeting

VILLA PARK, Aug. 20.—Members of the Priscilla club of this community are completing plans for the coming year. The club will convene in September for the first time following a vacation. The club, which is a social organization, meets at the homes of members. Present officers are: Mrs. John Agan, president; Mrs. Homer Baker, vice president; Mrs. A. W. Treach, secretary; Miss Margaret Olditch, treasurer. The club was organized May 1, 1912, in the home of Mrs. R. Handy. There were 10 charter members, Mrs. Louis DeLong, Mrs. Elizabeth Copenhaver, Mrs. Andy, Mrs. John Holditch, Mrs. Roger Robb, Mrs. J. McGillogly, Ursula Post Wallace, Mrs. Effie Elson, Mrs. Harry Clayton and Mrs. Elizabeth Lee. The first resident was Mrs. Louis DeLong and Mrs. J. B. Handy was secretary and treasurer. At the second meeting of the society, Miss Margaret Olditch became a member. Meetings were held every week at first, but are held every two weeks at present.

Observe Birthday At W. R. C. Meeting

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—The birthday of Mrs. Julia H. Miller was observed at the regular meeting of the Woman's Relief corps yesterday noon, when members gathered in the Smith and Grote hall for a covered dish luncheon. Hostesses were Mrs. Laura McCoy, Mrs. Alvira Otto, Mrs. Julia H. Miller and Mrs. Bert Deck. Mrs. Miller was presented with lovely cake by Mrs. Mabel Lee. After the dinner the regular business session was held.

Present other than the hostesses were Mrs. Hattie Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John McKibben, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Perry, Mrs. Mary Chassman, Mrs. Mabel Lee, Mrs. Lucy Robinson, Mrs. Nettie Todhunter, Mrs. Lydia Jones, Miss Mary Hall, Mrs. Ralls, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. N. End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting
Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, lives out congested blood, heals and stores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record in this city, that McCoy Drug Co. says one bottle of HEM-ROID abates must end your pile agony or money back.

Here's One Goat Dogs Won't Bother

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—A long-horned billy goat owned by C. D. Lindsay, 805 North Orange street, gave battle to two police dogs yesterday and in spite of the fact that the goat was tethered by a 15-foot rope, had nearly vanquished his opponents when a neighbor fired a shot gun and frightened the dogs away.

FINISH WORK ON BIG TABERNACLE

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—The John Brown tabernacle at the corner of Glassell and Walnut streets was expected to be finished today. Seventy-one workers were engaged in its erection yesterday and 40 were engaged today.

Prayer meeting will be held tomorrow evening at the Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock with Evangelist John Brown as the leader.

The evangelistic services will begin in the tabernacle the evening of September 13.

Friends Guests At Dinner Party Held In Dierker Home

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dierker, South Parker street, were hosts at a dinner party last night. The table was beautifully appointed and was centered with pom-pom dahlias. White candles in crystal holders were tied with bows of silk tulle. Guests, who were all close friends, enjoyed a most pleasant evening following the dinner.

Those present other than the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Lemke, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Orin Ingle and sons, Rodney and Russell; Miss Mamie Butterfield, Mr. and Mrs. George Backman, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Mary Moody, Miss Mary Moody, Miss Nan Kyle and Mrs. Margaret Mitschen.

HOLD FUNERAL OF MRS. SARAH MARCH

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—Funeral services were held at the Gillogy funeral chapel this afternoon for Mrs. Sarah March, 65, of Villa Park, who passed away last week at her home at that place. Funeral arrangements were delayed until Mrs. March's brother, Dr. Alex Pearson, of Ann Arbor, Mich., who was away on a camping trip, could be located. The Rev. G. W. Kitzmiller, former pastor of the Villa Park church, conducted services. Mrs. March had lived at Villa Park for the past 21 years. She is survived by two brothers, Dr. Pearson, of Ann Arbor and George Pearson, of Howell, Mich., and one sister, Mrs. W. M. Schiefele, of De Witt, Mich. Interment was in the Sunnyside mausoleum.

TELLS OF SIAM MISSION WORK AT CLUB MEET

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—Interesting facts regarding the people of Siam and their rulers, King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai, were related to members of the Lions club by the Rev. Lorin S. Hanna, missionary to Siam from the local Presbyterian church, at the meeting yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Hanna is in this country with his family on a year's furlough.

The king is intensely interested in the welfare of his people, the speaker said and gives nearly all his strength and attention to this purpose. He is extremely democratic and visits the various missions in which he takes an active interest, last year having given nearly $8000 to aid this work.

The ruler is one of the three absolute monarchs left in the world today, the speaker said, and his queen is the first woman to occupy this position who has accompanied her husband to all public affairs. The king has but one wife, the Rev. Mr. Hanna said, and the couple are in entire sympathy in their work among their subjects.

The present dynasty of Siam is about 150 years old and the subjects are of two races. Those of Central Siam are an intermingling of a race from Kashmir, India, who migrated to Siam and the original aborigines of Southern China, the Thai race. They were crowded from Southern China to Siam by northern Mongolians and in turn crowded the original inhabitants of Siam in the mountains. It is among these latter people that the Hannas are working.

Seven months of the year the missionaries sweater and the other five they bake, the speaker said, and the time just before dawn when it is about 50 degrees above, is the coolest weather they ever know.

Deer which bark like dogs and large lizards which bark like dogs are found among the curious fauna of the place, the Rev. Mr. Hanna related.

Ivan Swanger presided at the meeting and Roy Edwards gave a report of the recent county council meeting. Charles W. Coffey was program chairman.

On September 4 the local club will present a program for the Los Angeles Lions club.

There was a net gain of four per cent in the number of Bell telephones in the State of Maryland during 1930.

Woodpeckers and Squirrels Ready For Wet Weather

ORANGE, Aug. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Wickersham returned this week from their cabin at Big Bear, Mrs. Wickersham stated that old timers in that district are predicting an early and wet winter.

Mrs. Wickersham says that the predictions are based on the large supplies of pinenuts and fruit the chipmunks and squirrels are putting away and the fact that woodpeckers are pounding more than an usual number of acorns in the trees.

Cars shipped to date total 341 and according to Roy Runnels, manager and secretary of the plant, very little fruit remains in the house and picking for the remainder of the year will be very light.

Shipments this year were the heaviest since 1925, when 482 cars were shipped. Market conditions this year are better than they were in that year of banner shipments. The average price per box was somewhat better last year than this.

Right after the war you got about two tire miles for one cent. Today you get nearer THIRTY

Why buy a Second-Choice Tire when First-Choice costs no more?

You expect bargains these days in everything you buy, but in almost no other article can you find such extraordinary value as in a Goodyear Tire.

Prices are the lowest in the history of the automobile — but, more than that, quality is the highest.

As an example, in 1918 the price of a 30 x 3½ cord (the commonest size) was $41.65. Now, a Goodyear balloon for the same make of car (size 28 x 4.75-19) sells for $8.55.

That's only about a fifth of the price; and it's putting it modestly to say that today's Goodyears will give three times the mileage.

HERE'S HOW TIRE VALUES HAVE SOARED IN RECENT YEARS

| YEAR | 29 x 4.40-21 |
|------|--------------|
| 1925 | $19.90 |
| 1926 | 17.90 |
| 1927 | 12.10 |
| 1928 | 11.45 |
| 1929 | 8.25 |
| 1930 | 8.25 |
| 1931 | 7.05 |

Right after the war you got about two tire miles for a cent. Today you get nearer thirty for a cent from Goodyears.

And that's not saying a word about the incomparably greater comfort and style and safety of the new standard All-Weather Tread Tire as Goodyear builds it now!

Isn't it short-sighted to risk delays and danger on threadbare tires when the first-choice tire of the world can be bought at today's record-breaking low prices?

Of course it is! And when you buy new tires let your common sense answer the question, "Why buy a second-choice tire, when first-choice costs no more?"

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS

"Five minutes after midnight he'll have the rest of the proof—unless we get the five grand. That's all." That is what Benny Rufano, hanger-on at Emma's night club, told Peter Wayne who had been waiting to keep an appointment with Detective Sergeant Charles Mitchell. This was less than 24 hours after Martha Thayer had found her husband, Tack, murdered in their penthouse. She and Evan Ross were suspected by Inspector Connolly and Benny was threatening that Connolly would learn who killed Tack Thayer and where the murderer hid the pistol. Martha, disheartened by the drunk, Tack, and Peter, having unexpectedly made himself independent financially, had returned to New York and fallen hopelessly in love with Martha, the wife of his college mate at Yale. Benny had previously demanded and gotten $500 from Martha after Tack, while drunk, had lost heavily in a crap game at Emma's. Arthur Bouton, Peter's charnelist, was with Martha when Connolly questioned her for the second time at the home of Peter's sister, Carol. Mrs. Steve Wentworth, Charles told Peter Connolly was about to arrest Martha and asked his aid in springing her from the Wentworth home.

INSTALLMENT 23

Peter stood restlessly, putting his weight first on one foot, then on the other, on the steps of the Madison avenue entrance of the Ritz. He was in an agony of nervousness. He'd obeyed Charles to the letter—but the least slip would be fatal, and the successful execution of Charles' plan called for the coordination of so many factors in which luck, after all, must play a decisive part.

How long would it take Connolly to go through the formalities, get his warrant, turn up, armed with it, and thenceforth, not to be denied, at Carol's? Could Carol do her part? She'd seemed to understand over the telephone, nor had she seemed to consider that what he was asking her to do was anything especially dangerous or unreasonably. Charles had said she wouldn't. "Women, Pete," he'd said, "don't give a damn about the law. I guess that's maybe because they've not had much to say about what the law ought to be. Anyway, you take the nicest, straightest women you know, and they'll break any law they please, and look you right in the eye while they're doing it. They don't even feel guilty, the way a man will. I'll duck a case that's got a woman mixed up in it every time I can."

The necessary use of the telephone had worried Peter, too; he'd been afraid of a tapped wire. But Charles had laughed at that.

"I'm not saying that sort of thing isn't done, Pete," he'd said. "It is—but it isn't done half as much in real life as in detective stories. And you can't manage it in five minutes, either. We can fix it to tap a wire when we're sure a guy's up to something; and we can't hang anything on him, but it takes time. And Connolly wouldn't see any call for that now. He thinks he's got an open and shut case as it is—he isn't looking for the madam to give herself away over the phone."

The actual plan had been simple enough. Carol wore, a good deal, a costume that included a hat with a little half veil; a rather conspicuous costume, as it happened. And, if all had gone well, she had gone out, openly, wearing it, a few minutes ago, taken a cab, and then returned, almost at once, as if she'd forgotten something, leaving the cab waiting downstairs. And—Martha was to come down in her place. Cab after cab came down Madison Avenue; dozens of them. It seemed to Peter, drew up before the Ritz. Then suddenly, he caught a glimpse, through a window, of a familiar dress. He hurried across the pavement and stepped into the cab as the doorman held the door open.

"Go south—over to Park and south," he ordered.

It was Martha—Martha, white and trembling, but free!

"I don't understand, Peter," she said. "But it's all right, I suppose."

"It's going to be!" said Peter, elated. Even this momentary, temporary triumph over Connolly delighted him; it represented action, at least. Now, if Connolly held his hand for another hour, and, according to Charles, there was every chance in the world that he would, since he could hardly have anticipated any need for special haste, they might bring it off!

The cab turned east at 40th street, went south, then down Park Avenue, and turned, in the tangled traffic above Cooper Square, to go west on Ninth street to Peter's door. The veil hid Martha's eyes; Peter's doorman nodded respectfully.

"Good morning, Mrs. Wentworth!" he said.

There was a witness—and one who, since he wouldn't know he was lying, would be a hard one for Connolly to confound, assuming that he followed the trail. They shot up to Peter's floor; even Manuel took Martha for Carol. He looked amazed, and his white teeth gleamed, when Martha raised her veil and he recognized her; Martha and Tack had dined at Peter's often.

"Into my room with you—get in to bed," said Peter. "Carol'll be here any minute, and take your clothes."

Alone with Manuel he explained. Manuel's smile was wider little even. He was a quick-witted little devil, and he would have committed murder, probably, with the utmost good will, if Peter had asked most good will, if Peter had asked this only amused him. He and Peter stood behind the door, which was left ajar; within five minutes Carol, a little out of breath, pushed it open and came in. She was laughing.

"It worked," she said. "Wasn't it lucky this suit had just come? I've never worn it before! And thank Heaven, veils are coming in! I just slipped in, downstairs, and said Mrs. Porter—I'm expected! and they never even thought of announcing me."

"Get changed and get out of here, quick," said Peter. "Martha's in my room."

Excitedly he watched his sister disappearing through the door of his room. Luck had been with them, so far. If it said Carol would be home again in the clothes in which Martha had gone out, before Connolly arrived; even if the trick that had been played were suspected there was nothing, probably, to lead Connolly here. Conceivably he might take a chance and turn up here to make a search, but Manuel was already primed for that possibility, and the new fashion of a service entrance even for small flats in good houses was going to help. He blessed this modern life that had left his sister, older than Martha by a good twelve years, he supposed, and the mother of two children, with a figure like a young girl's!

Carol had gone, with a hasty kiss for Peter, within ten minutes, and he knocked on his own door and went in, at Martha's assenting word. She was lying down, fully dressed, except for the hat, in Carol's new suit.

"I feel terrible," she said, with a faint smile. "I suppose it's only natural! Oh, Peter—it's all so dreadful, and I haven't the time to think of that, even, with all this excitement. Tack—"

"He'd want you to be thinking of yourself right now—not of him," said Peter. "Lord, I don't mean to be heartless. Martha, and it makes me sick whenever I have time to stop and think about Tack, too. But the first thing we've got to do, for his sake as well as yours, is to get you out of the jam you're in."

"Has anything happened since last night—anything I don't know about?" said Martha. "It must have, I suppose, or they wouldn't—they wouldn't be ready to arrest me."

"Plenty's happened," said Peter, grimly. "Some things I know about—a lot more than I don't. I'll tell you as much as I can." He looked at her. "If you're up to it," he added.

"I'm all right as long as I lie down," said Martha. "Tell me, Peter."

Choppily, because so much of it was still vague and confused in his own mind, he told her what he had learned at Emma's the night before. About his talk with Meyer Zahn, first of all. That made her furious; it was the first time since, on the roof, she had burst stormily out with her charge that they were trying to blame her for Tack's death because that was easier than trying to find who had really killed him that he had seen her angry, seen a flash of her old spirit, of the real Martha.

"That's disgusting!" she said. "He—oh, I've gone to him, I know, and I depended on him too much, I suppose. But that! How dare he think I did it? How dare he?"

"I wanted to paste him in the jaw, myself," said Peter. "But—well, I didn't. You can't, somehow, when you know a man can't fight back—and wouldn't if he could."

"I don't understand, though," said Martha, puzzled. "He knows better, Peter—he must! He knows I didn't do it. He knows I couldn't. He knew how fond I was of Tack."

How One Woman Lost 20 Pounds of Fat

He never let me forget it myself. I was in a poisonous temper, sometimes, when I went to him, and he always reminded me that I really was fond of Tack, somehow. Not—not by what he actually said, so much, but the way he got my mind to working."

Peter went on, quoting what Zahn had said, as well as he could remember.

"That isn't true," she said, once, interrupting. "He did give me advice. Not in so many words, ever—no. But he put things in my head I wouldn't have thought of for myself. He was the one who made me feel that it was right for me to—"

She hesitated; looked at Peter; then went ahead. "To love Evan," she said. "I thought that was terrible, when I was married, even though Tack and I weren't making a go of things."

"How much did you tell him, Martha," Peter asked, curiously.

"Oh, everything!" she said. "You just think aloud, you know. You lie there, and say whatever comes into your head, whether it makes sense or not, and he sorts it all out. It—it would be rather frightful if you couldn't trust a man like that, Peter."

"I've thought that myself," said Peter, rather grimly.

"Oh, yes—he knows as much about me as I do about myself," Martha went on. "I told him all about Benny, for instance."

"What did he think about that business? I'd have expected him to tell you to refuse to let Benny hold you up."

"He didn't. He thought it was better to pay him. He agreed that Tack would make a frightful row if it got to him."

"I see," said Peter. "Well—that's where I go on record as disagreeing with one high priced psychoanalyst! If you'd come to me—I Benny got after me last night, too. That—I guess that's the most important thing I've got to tell you, Martha."

And, leaving nothing out, he told her of Benny's demand and of the threats that had backed it up.

"It's out, though," he said. "I told Charles, and I told Bouton, and they won't stand for it. Any idea of what he's driving at about the gun?"

"Only this," said Martha, her eyes drawn together in a puzzled frown. "There is a place in the apartment where something could be hidden. We took that penthouse from Terry Marsh, you know—he's abroad, now. And he had a safe built in, and hidden. He used to keep a lot of valuable papers that he had to be able to get at quickly, sometimes, out of banking hours."

"Where was it?"

"In the fireplace, in the living room. At the side, if you push in the fourth tile from the left, and the third from the floor, the whole tiled part opens, and the safe's behind."

"Queer!" said Peter. "Looks as if Benny knew about it, all right. And did you tell Tack you'd be home at half past two? Connolly's got hold of that, too."

"I think I did. I'd have said anything to quiet him just then. At the Fantomas, you mean?"

"Yes."

"I'll have to let Charles know about the safe. I can't figure out where Benny comes in—and how he got to know about that safe. That's the queerest thing yet, Martha, it seems to me."

The doorbell rang, violently, and they both started.

"Up with you!" said Peter, instantly. "May be nothing—may be Connolly. Manuel knows what to do with you." He glanced around. "Nothing of yours here—good! Out the back door—we'll have to take a chance on their having a man there watching."

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE

LONDON—it may seem odd, but the chairman of the International Wine Tasting Conference, the organization which passes on champagnes and wines made all over the continent, is an American. He is Judge James Murfin. The conference recently met here to taste four champagnes, three well known and one a newcomer.

GILLETTE WELL IN H. B. FIELD FAILS TO FLOW

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 20

The Superior Oil company's Gillette well was swabbed Tuesday night and Wednesday night and failed to come in a producer. Field scouts for the major oil companies and many citizens watched the swabbing.

The well was swabbed through 4000 feet of four-inch flow line. This flow line is inside a nine-inch casing that is set below 7000 feet. There is a six inch liner below the nine inch casing, the six inch extending about 600 feet and attached to it is the 400 feet of perforated casing in the oil formation.

Oil scouts point out that the well could be swabbed down only to the end of the four-inch flow line, leaving 3000 feet of nine inch casing filled with mud and water. Whatever oil and gas pressure the well may have, was not strong enough to flow through the pressure of the water and mud in the nine-inch. The fluid swabbed from the well was not salty, showing the well is not letting any water in from the cement jobs at the end of the nine inch and also at the end of the six inch above the perforated.

Whether or not the Superior will insert more of the four inch and swab the well down more to lighten the load, is not announced. The well, oil scouts state, can be left standing in its present condition indefinitely without fear of damage to the oil formations.

Singer On Park Program Tonight

ANAHEIM, Aug. 20.—Elsie Eyre, whom critics of the east have acclaimed the successor to Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," will be the featured soloist on the public concert being given in the Anaheim city park tonight. The orchestra will be under the direction of Maurice Amsterdam.

Miss Eyre will open her program with "The Waltz Song" from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet." This will be followed by two of the Swedish folk songs which have made her name synonymous with her immortal fellow countrywomen.

Dinner Arranged By Brea Society

BREA, Aug. 20.—Young people of the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church are entering enthusiastically upon the week of a reorganization of that branch, a department which within the past several months has experienced a loss of members and a consequent inactivity due in part to some moving away and others being absent at school or work.

A general reorganization dinner and program has been planned for the evening of September 10, with Miss Caroline Moore named as chairman. Assisting her will be Miss Myra May, in charge of entertainment and publicity; Sally Culp, decorations; Owen Andrew, tickets; Bob Close, tables; Melvin McMechin, music.

—they're FRESH!

If you are not yet a Camel smoker you have a grand treat in store when first you enjoy the benefits of the Humidor Pack.

The three things in a cigarette that can make it sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat are safely eliminated from Camels.

There are no harsh parched-dry tobaccos—the fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended require no overheating to make them palatable.

There is no peppery dust to irritate the throat—that's whisked away by a special vacuum-cleaning process.

There is no staleness nor loss of fragrance—made fine, Camels are kept fine wherever you buy them, thanks to the Humidor Pack.

This scientific germ-safe wrapping—not plain ordinary Cellophane, but moisture-proof Cellophane which costs nearly twice as much—seals in all the aroma and freshness, seals it so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

If you want to know what that means in throat-friendliness and smoking-pleasure, try Camels for just one day, then leave them—if you can.

BABY CONTEST DETAILS. RULES ARE OUTLINED

On another page of today's Register is a full page ad telling about the "Month of Stars" baby contest, to be staged at the Fox West Coast theater during the next five weeks.

Persons interested should read details and rules of the contest thoroughly as time is short before the contest opens and the sooner babies are entered in the contest, the better.

First prize will be a deposit of $50 in the Commercial National Bank here, to be left until the baby is of college age. By that time its interest will make it worth $200. Eleven other prizes are offered by the Neely Dry Goods Company here, one of the sponsors of the contest. These prizes will all come from the newly established baby department at the store and will be announced within the next few days, it was said.

Pictures of the babies are to be posted in the lobby of the Fox West Coast theater, in the lobby of the Commercial National Bank and at Neely's store and there will be three winners each week for four weeks.

Court Notes

Juan Rodriguez, accused of grand theft of an automobile, has been found not guilty by a superior court jury. He was asserted to have taken an automobile belonging to Mrs. Blanche Wisner, of Garden Grove.

The estate of the late Merced Chavez, who died March 24, 1930, is valued at not more than $2500 in a petition for letters of administration filed by Cuberto Chavez. Heirs listed are Cuca, Lupe, Amado and Pedro Chavez.

Lillie R. Gray, widow of the late Jesse R. Gray, of Anaheim, has filed a petition for letters of administration in the estate of the deceased. The property is valued in the petition at not more than $4810. In addition to the widow the heirs include Mildred Gloria Gray and Warren Robert Gray, children.

A petition for letters of administration in the estate of the late William C. Wood has been filed by Louis Durling. Wood died June 29, 1931. The estate is valued at not more than $4000. The heirs reside in Kansas City.

Manuel M. Coelho has brought suit for divorce against Velma Coelho on grounds of desertion. They were married in 1923 and separated in 1929. They have one child.

Henry I. and Leta S. Padgham have brought suit against O. F. Cravens and Sheriff Logan Jackson, seeking a restraining order to prevent sale of their property on Irvine's subdivision of the Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana and in Santa Ana. The complaint said that the sale was threatened in accordance with an execution levied against the property which followed a $990.31 judgment against the Padghams secured by Cravens in the Los Angeles municipal court. The sale would put a cloud on the title of the plaintiffs and they would have to file suit to quiet title unless Cravens brought suit for possession of the property, the complaint said.

Letters of administration in the estate of the late Philomena Unger, who died December 1, 1928, have been applied for by Joseph Unger, widower. The estate is valued at not more than $3000. Florence Connen, daughter, of Los Angeles, is listed as an heir in addition to the petitioner, who is the widower, and resides at Anaheim.

POWER OF GOD TO RAISE DEAD DECLARED FACT

"That God can raise the dead body and spirit and take them to heaven is not a theory, but is a demonstrated fact. God has already taken many people bodily out of their graves here and they have been seen over in heaven," averred Evangelist John E. Ford last night to a large and attentive audience at the tabernacle located in the 2700 block on North Main street.

"The four living creatures mentioned in Revelation 4 are not beasts, as the King James version has translated it, but are four people, along with the 24 elders, that once lived on this earth, died and were resurrected bodily at the time of Christ's crucifixion and taken with him to heaven when he ascended to his father. They are living there tonight, not as ethereal spirits, but with flesh and bones, and occupy a place above the angels and right with God on his throne.

"No one should be skeptical about the resurrection of the dead and whether God will bring the bodies out of the tomb. He has already made a demonstration of his power to raise soul and body from the grave and demonstrated the glory and everlasting life with which he intends to crown man. If he can take 28 people home to heaven alive from the dead, body and all, and keep them living eternally with him in his throne, there is no question but that he can raise our loved ones and ourselves and make us sit with him in his throne."

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Barnard played their steel guitars and sang numbers at the service.

Children's Water Carnival Planned For Next Sunday

VERSATILITY

In June, Frank Kurtz, 18-year-old Los Angeles boy shown below in his flying togs, established a new world's junior airplane speed record. In July he sailed to Honolulu on a tanker, won second place in a national diving contest, and then came home a stowaway on a liner. Now, in August, he is preparing for an attempt to break the junior transcontinental flying mark. And, in September, he will compete in the Junior National A. A. U. diving championships at Long Beach to defend his low board title. He is shown in the inset training for the diving contest.

MODERN EDUCATION METHODS ARE SOUND, KIWANIANS TOLD BY SPEAKER AT NOON MEET

Declaring the modern education methods were sound and that definite progress was being made in education, Dr. F. C. Tooton, vice president and administrator of the University of Southern California, gave an outline of things accomplished with modern methods of instruction in schools, at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club held yesterday noon in Ketner's cafe. Dr. Tooton was introduced by Louis Plumber, principal of the Fullerton Union high school.

In his brief introductory speech yesterday, this accomplishment is certainly worthy.

"The second major objective is the development of command over fundamental processes—the learning of reading, writing and arithmetic. This applies to all branches of the school system. Young people of today have powers in these lines that young people of past days never had. Why, I can remember when the entire first year of school was spent in reading one primer. Now an average of more than 27 books are read during the time spent in the first grade.

"Everyone today reads more than ever before. Young people are gaining a complete command of thought through their extensive reading.

"Teachers of today are challenged before they are given positions. They must be able to excite an avid interest in the student for more and more reading. Young people today are reading about 10 times as much as before.

"The third objective that is being accomplished is that individuals are being taught to examine themselves and the world in regard to a life program. Young people are not taught to have a command of the entire field of educational material. This is impossible. We are exposing young people to opportunities that they have never had before.

SCHOOL LANDS OF RICHLAND TAXED $1090

The value of the law passed by the last legislature to govern creation of special assessment districts was seen last night at the meeting of the board of education when it was reported that one of the school district's lots on Richland street, recently opened and paved past the school property, has been taxed $1090.

The lot, with a house, was purchased for $3500 after condemnation proceedings had been carried out. It is located at the corner of Richland and Flower streets. Another lot owned by the district, adjoining the corner lot and facing on Richland street, has been taxed $765.87 on this paving project. A third lot facing on Flower and adjoining the corner, will escape with a tax of $8.27.

Some board members expressed the opinion that the tax for this assessment district will mean that owners of some vacant lots in the region will be unable to retain their property because of the tax. The assessment district was created before the recent law went into effect.

That this condition has been true in the past on other assessment district projects was evidenced recently when County Tax Collector John Lamb had for sale at auction a group of Santa Ana lots on which special assessments were so high that owners had failed to pay their taxes and lost the property.

The law passed by the last legislature provides that if the tax on property in a proposed assessment district plus taxes on previous assessment projects is for 50 per cent. or more of its value, such proceedings shall be unlawful. However, there is a loop hole in that, if the city council believes the project to be a public necessity can create the district by a four-fifths vote. The law requires, however, that before the district is created, the council must have accurate information, through a tentative assessment, as to just how much the tax would be against each lot in the district.

A majority protest can stop formation of the district.

Others. They are training for a necessary economic independence. "The type of activities in school that call for the development of thought is another major development. The matching of minds in association in social affairs is of great value morally and in other ways. Students that are active socially usually are energetic and good students.

"The contribution to the enrichment of home life through things learned in schools is another point of great value. It enables young people to timely issues at home, enriching the wealth of knowledge home.

"Schools of today are developing world understanding, promoting interest in travel, geography and freedom of speech. As the late Woodrow Wilson said, 'you can't hate people if you know them.'"

People Read More

"Everyone today reads more than ever before. Young people are gaining a complete command of thought through their extensive reading.

"Teachers of today are challenged before they are given positions. They must be able to excite an avid interest in the student for more and more reading. Young people today are reading about 10 times as much as before.

"The third objective that is being accomplished is that individuals are being taught to examine themselves and the world in regard to a life program. Young people are not taught to have a command of the entire field of educational material. This is impossible. We are exposing young people to opportunities that they have never had before.

"Students are learning to utilize their native capacities to the maximum. They are training for success in life in vocational subjects while in college. Large numbers are taking general courses but real progress is being made in this program and in all

ORANGE BELT S. A. OFFICERS TO MEET

Officers of the Salvation Army from all of the territory south of the Tehachaple, embraced in the Orange belt division, under Brigadier James Dee, and in the Los Angeles and South Coast division, under Major A. Kranz, will meet for an interdivisional officers' encampment Monday at the Salvation Army fresh air camp at Redondo. Commissioner Adam Gifford, in command of the 11 western states and Hawaii, will be the principal speaker. Other nationally known Salvationists and other religious leaders will appear on the program.

The morning sessions and afternoons will be devoted to the work of the Army, especially problems which, because of the unusual amount of extra-religious work necessary to be done in times of unemployment, are to the fore just now. The night sessions will be spiritual and inspirational. Music will play a large part, as a large band will be maintained, made up of officers and members of their families. Adjutant Hallington Rogers and Captain Ed Taylor will be in charge.

Mrs. S. B. Peppard Dies In Fullerton

FULLERTON, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Lillian B. Peppard, 37, 330 North Balboa avenue, died early yesterday at her home following an illness of a few days.

She is survived by her husband, Sam B. Peppard, and a daughter, Ada Lee Peppard, of Fullerton; Mrs. Peppard's father, R. M. Kiker, of Butler, Okla., now in Fullerton, and two brothers, Floyd Kiker, of Fullerton, and Leonard Kiker, of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Peppard had lived in Fullerton for the past eight years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and of Amity chapter, O. E. S.

The body is at the McAulay and Suters funeral parlors with funeral arrangements awaiting word from relatives in the east.

TREBLE CLEF CLUB TO AID BAND CONCERT

Featuring the works of leading French composers and offering brilliant variety with the addition of several novel attractions, including the appearance of Lloyd Staples, baritone soloist of Pasadena, the favorite local ladies' choral ensemble, the Treble Clef club, and two ballet numbers to be offered by members from the Putnam School of the Dance, the Santa Ana municipal band will be heard in an effective concert program in Birch park tonight, under the direction of D. C. Clamfont.

The following masterpieces from the works of foremost French composers will be programmed:

1. "Marche et Cortège" from "L'Es-timée de Sabat" ... C. Gounod
2. Overture—"Masaniello" D. Aubert
3. Comic—"Funeral March of a Marionette" ... C. Gounod
4. Vocal—"Vision Fugitive" from "Herodiade" ... J. Massenet
5. Selection—"Faust" ... C. Gounod
6. Selection—"Carmen" ... Bizet
7. Vocal ... Saint-Saens

The Treble Clef Club of Santa Ana, Directed by William Clara Hall. 8. "Baccanale" from "Samson et Dalila" ... Saint-Saens

Large ballet of 25 members from Putnam School of the Dance.

Another record crowd is expected to be on hand for tonight's concert, more than 5000 music lovers from all over southern California having witnessed last week's brilliant "Spanish night" program. According to Harry Hanson, president and manager of the band, only two more concerts remain in addition to tonight's "French night" program, before the conclusion of the organization's current summer series.

CHURCH CLUBS FRATERNAL

WOMEN SOCIETY THE HOME WEDDINGS FASHIONS HOUSEHOLD

Santa Ana Girl and Upland Man Have Quiet Wedding

The quiet wedding ceremony uniting Miss Dorothy Maroon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Luther Maroon, 510 East Seventeenth street, and Charles H. Holmes of Upland was an event of yesterday morning, taking place at 10 o'clock in the chapel of the First Episcopal church of Pasadena.

Present at the ceremony were the bride's father, Dr. Maroon, and Mr. Holmes' mother, Mrs. Myra Holmes, who has been living in Upland but plans to make her home in Pasadena.

Miss Maroon and Mr. Holmes took their places before an altar lighted with tall white tapers in candelabra, and decorated with bouquets of gladiolus in pink and white. The bride wore a smart green traveling suit with matching accessories, complemented with a carriage of gardenias.

Before departing for their honeymoon trip, the new Mr. and Mrs. Holmes stopped at the Maroon home in this city for a short time, then leaving for La Jolla where they planned to have luncheon. They will spend their vacation on a guest ranch near lower California, and in two weeks will return to Upland to make their home on Euclid avenue. Mr. Holmes has been engaged in ranching since his graduation from Pomona college two years ago.

Mrs. Holmes is a graduate of the Santa Ana high school, and has had two years of study at Scripps college at Claremont. Her marriage was preceded by various social courtesies extended her by her many friends.

Guests From Indiana Are Complimented At Luncheon

A pretty luncheon and afternoon of bridge given recently honored Miss Angela Sheeler and Miss Estella Sheeler of Gary, Ind., when Mrs. V. C. Croal entertained in her home at 2576 Riverside drive. The Misses Sheeler are cousins of Dr. Croal and are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sheeler, 1238 South Broadway.

At the conclusion of the bridge sessions following the one o'clock luncheon, Miss Estella Sheeler received first prize and Mrs. Frank Mead, second. Two charming guest prizes were presented the honorees.

Sharing in the afternoon besides the Misses Sheeler, and the hostess, Mrs. Croal, were Mrs. Urlun Engleman, Mrs. Frank Mead, Mrs. Harry Siemonsma, Mrs. Ray Williams, Mrs. John Faust, Miss Bernice Johnson, Miss Nan Mead, Miss Helen McCann of Los Angeles and Miss Marjorie Brothers of Santa Barbara.

Miss Powell Honored At Farewell Party In Hicks Home

Miss Virginia Powell was honored at a pretty affair given yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Norman Hicks entertained in her home on North Garmey street. The party was in the nature of a farewell for Miss Powell, who will leave here August 27 for Hermosillo, Mex., to resume teaching in the Mission school there.

Vivid-hued zinnias from the gardens of the C. S. Crookshank home on Lemon Heights were used to decorate the rooms for the bridge games enjoyed. The hostess had fashioned clever map tables of Mexico, with Hermosillo as the central point of interest.

For scoring high in the bridge games, Miss Elizabeth Rinkler was presented with a blue crystal powder jar, while a black and white chiffon handkerchief was given to Miss Eleanor Crookshank for scoring second high. Miss Powell received a pretty scarf in tints of green as a special gift.

Guests were happy at this time to congratulate their hostess, whose marriage to Mr. Hicks took place just a year ago tonight. Mrs. Hicks will be remembered as Miss Dorothy Haynes.

In serving refreshments, the hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Carey Haynes. Tables were appointed in topaz, black and crystal and in green, for the serving of a two-course menu consisting of moulded shrimp salad and fruit sherbet with cookies and punch.

Those present, other than the honoree, Miss Powell, were the Misses Marian Bruner, Eleanor Crookshank, Margaret Drake, Jessie Warburton, Margaret Haynes, Florence Rinkler, Elizabeth Rinkler and Mrs. Ethel Lunderback, this city; Miss Pauline Neddermeyer, San Clemente, and Miss Mildred Binkley, Orange, and the hostess, Mrs. Hicks.

Delta Alpha Class Has Annual Picnic in Anaheim Park

For their annual picnic members of the Delta Alpha class of the First Methodist church met recently in Anaheim park. Some of the group arrived early in the evening to go swimming in the pool or to enjoy a leisurely walk about the grounds.

The delicious picnic menu was served to the Delta Alpha girls and to a number of guests, including the Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Carhart, the Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Carhart and sons, Ernest and Homer, and daughter, Maurine, students at Wesleyan university at Mitchell, S. D.; the Rev. and Mrs. George A. Warner and sons and daughter, Charles, Craig and Florence; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Theal, James H. Hughes, Mrs. Mary McCuskey of Los Angeles and Miss Marie McGinnis. Miss Edna Knoll and Miss Verna Knoll were also present, attending their first meeting since their return from a three-months' visit with relatives in Minnesota.

Interesting talks were given by the Rev. and Mrs. Carhart on their work in Chile and on university life at Mitchell by Miss Maurine Carhart. A short business meeting was conducted just before the close of the evening, with the president, Miss Olive Briney, presiding.

Business Girls Meet For Steak Bake

A pleasant time was shared Tuesday evening by members of the Wyandale Magdalen club of the Y. W. C. A. who motored to Heres park for a steak bake. Arrangements for the affair were in charge of the president, Miss Audrey Chastain, and Mrs. Delbert Wilkinson, Miss Dorothy Dresser, Miss Dorothy Lutz and Miss Betty Wiswall.

Following the dinner, a variety of diversions took place, with many of the girls playing golf. This was one of the last social meetings the club will have this summer, as regular meetings will begin in several weeks.

Former Leader Honored At Annual Missionary Luncheon

When members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist church met yesterday at Newport Beach in the P. A. Robinson cottage for their annual meeting, they availed themselves of the opportunity to honor one of the group, Mrs. Elizabeth McLeod, former president of the society. The occasion marked her 87th birthday anniversary.

A covered-dish luncheon was served, after which Mrs. Henry W. Guthrie presided at the business meeting. Mrs. George Warner led the devotionals. Following reports by various committees, Mrs. W. D. Finn, advisor for Standard Bearer girls of the church, told of the Standard Bearer's convention held recently at the Pacific Palisades. Two hundred girls were in camp at this time.

Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. McCormac read letters of interest from various missionaries in India, and Mrs. Mathews gave a short talk on "The College Abroad Movement." Mrs. A. J. Rutter gave a vocal solo.

The climax of the afternoon came when Mrs. Chapman presented Mrs. McLeod with a prettily decorated birthday cake. At this time, Mrs. Horton Palmer and Mrs. Fannie Lash read poems in her honor, and of these the latter was an original one.

Announcement was made that the next meeting of the society will be held Friday afternoon, September 4, at 2 o'clock in the church. At this time mite boxes will be opened.

Calumpit Auxiliary Initiates New Member

Mrs. Theobella Stearns of Costa Mesa was initiated Tuesday night into Calumpit auxiliary No. 29, United Spanish War Veterans, when the regular meeting of the auxiliary was held in K. C. hall.

During the business session of the evening, a new password was given and reports of sickness among members, comrades and their families made. Announcement was made of the invitation extended to auxiliary members and their families to attend the covered-dish supper Tuesday evening, August 23, at 6 o'clock. Members are requested to bring table service.

A special meeting of the sewing circle is to be held Wednesday, August 26, in the home of Mrs. Myrtle Waffle, 2424 Valencia street. Each member is to bring her lunch and coffee will be served by the hostess. Sewing for the early fall bazaar will occupy the day.

Miss Young Entertains A. D. Club Members

Members of A. D. club held one of their delightful sessions when they met last night in the home of Miss Gladys Young at 625 South Main street. For this meeting the hostess used lovely Japanese lilacs in tall vases for decorations about her home.

Mrs. John Culp scored high and Mrs. George Harris low for women players during the evening of bridge, while George Harris held high score and W. Bary Davis held low for men. Appropriate prizes were presented winners.

When Miss Young served her refreshments in two courses, she used quaint little candle holders of old pond lilies with vases of green leaves as centerpieces on the tables. Tiny green candles flickered from these holders.

Members present besides the hostess, Miss Young, were Mr. and Mrs. Dean Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. George Seba, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bary Davis and Edmunds Hanson. The next meeting of the club will be held September 2 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Campbell, 1321 Orange avenue.

Bridge Luncheon for Miss Diehl Held in Laguna Beach

As a courtesy to Miss Mavia Diehl, whose marriage to Kenneth Beer is planned as an event of this Saturday, Miss Anne Tarver and Mrs. Margaret L. Britton presided at a charmingly appointed luncheon and afternoon of bridge recently in Hotel Laguna.

In carrying out a pink and green motif, the hostesses had arranged delicate pink flowers interspersed with greenery. A clever combination of place cards and tallies was effected with dainty tidbits served through the use of bridal slippers through the use of the name card was pierced. Pink nut cups completed the appointments.

Succeeding in scoring high in the afternoon bridge session were Miss Rowena Moore and the honoree, Miss Diehl. Both were presented with boxes of French perfumed soaps.

Institute Has Pretty Garden Bridge Party

Said to be one of the most successful bridge parties held by Capistrano Young Ladies Institute was the afternoon affair which took place Tuesday in the pretty gardens at the home of Mrs. Charles Borchard on Williams street. Fifteen tables were in play.

The pleasant affair was arranged by Mrs. Borchard, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Voskuhr, Mrs. William Strain, Mrs. J. P. Murphy and Mrs. Henry Hodges.

For holding high scores in bridge, Mrs. Leavitt Daley, Miss Gretchen Lieberman and Mrs. Reginald Hartley received sets of hand-embroidered pillow cases. Refreshments were served to conclude the affair.

Sewing Club Spends Evening in Orange

Chat and Sew club members met in Orange Tuesday night with Miss Edna Case in her home on North Center street. Large baskets of zinnias were used in decorating the home for the evening, spent in sewing and conversation.

To conclude the affair, the hostess served dainty refreshments or trays.

Members present, other than Miss Case, were Mesdames Ensley Campbell, Harvey Riggle, J. J. Vernon, Wilbur Woods, E. C. Frevert, Oliver Wickham, Harvey Emily, J. T. McInnis, Edwin Westcott, Earl Wood, John Powell, Ted Nall and Carl Pieter.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Campbell in her home on West Seventeenth street.

Wedding Here Unites Washington Couple

In the home of the Rev. George E. Whitale of 510 East Chestnut avenue, Miss Madge Foxton of Seattle, Wash., and H. R. Cuyler, formerly of Tacoma, Wash., now of Pasadena, were married Saturday evening, August 15, with the Rev. Mr. Whitale officiating at the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Frances Guley of Seattle as matron of honor and R. A. Bradford acted as best man. The young couple left on a honeymoon following the wedding. On return, Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler will be at home to their friends at 1408 Dominion avenue in Altadena.

Mr. Cuyler is division manager of the Standard Oil company in Pasadena.

Bridge Club Members Meet in Anaheim

Mrs. John Newhart was hostess Tuesday afternoon to members of a small bridge club of which a number of Santa Ana women are members, entertaining in her home in Anaheim.

For the luncheon which preceded the afternoon bridge session, the hostess used sweet peas in pastel tints for the centerpiece on the long table. Scoring high in the bridge session were Mrs. Ben Herr and Mrs. Elton McKamy. Those present were Mrs. Ben Herr, Mrs. Elton McKamy, Mrs. C. R. Barker, Mrs. C. T. Tompkins, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Blaine Hutton, Mrs. Herman Jobst and the hostess, Mrs. Newhart.

Pythian Sisters Attend Banquet After Meeting

Pythian Sisters held a meeting of unusual interest last night, for following their usual session in the Modern Woodmen hall, they were invited to the K. P. hall to be guests of the Knights of Pythias at a delicious banquet.

Guests from Anaheim, Tustin and other surrounding communities were present at the affair, concluding with card games and dancing enjoyed in the large hall. Announcement was made that the Pythian Sisters will have a card party Wednesday afternoon, August 26, at 2 o'clock in the M. W. A. hall. Bridge will be played.

Dessert Club Meets At Panorama Heights

Mrs. L. K. King was hostess to members of her dessert bridge club yesterday afternoon, entertaining in her home on Panorama Heights. The rooms were brightened with bouquets of large dahlias from the home gardens of Mrs. O. N. Robertson.

For the serving of the dessert course, tables were centered with asters. In the card games following, Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Waco, Tex., scored high for guests, receiving a desirable gift. Mrs. G. K. Scovel scored high among members and was presented with the club cup.

Guests present were Mrs. Joseph Thompson, Mrs. Robert Horn and Mrs. J. K. Evans. Members sharing the hospitality of the King home were Mesdames L. Allen Wallace, E. W. Spruance, Clarence Nison, Frances Fisher, G. K. Scovel, Robert Mize, O. N. Robertson and W. H. Wright.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Aug. 20.—Women of the Sunday school met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chester Hemstreet to do some sewing.

Mr. and Mrs. Oril Hare and daughter, Mary Lou Hare, and Mrs. Alice Hare left Sunday afternoon on a motor vacation trip. They go to Klamath Falls.

Ida Branson and Albina Mason, who have been making their home in Westminster, occupying one of the McDaniels houses, have moved to Glendale. The women are relatives of Mrs. W. J. Cosad.

Clyde Day and son, Herbert Day, attended the rodeo at Belmont Shore Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ford have gone to Ventura to spend a few days as the guests of friends.

H. C. Nelson, brother of Mrs. G. A. Eastwood, who was transferred from local oil fields to Oil Field, has again been transferred here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Pritchard and family spent Sunday in Los Angeles, where they visited an uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hart entertained as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, friends from Riverside.

Ernest and Philip Walton of Bartow were Sunday visitors in the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Phipps spent the week end in Pasadena.

Mrs. F. C. Percy and daughter, Miss Frances Percy of Colton, came Saturday as guests in the home of Mrs. Addie L. Blakey, remaining over until Monday. The visitors came here from Costa Mesa, where they spent Friday night with friends and Sunday afternoon were at Wintertown with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ulrich and daughter, who are former eastern friends of

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

When Tonsils Trouble

School will be open in a few days and already mothers are taking up the slack, seeing that school clothes are in order, and visits made to the dentist, for inspection if not for work. Let me urge that something be done for your child if "bad tonsils" are its lot.

I know of nothing that can tear down a child's health more quickly than infected tonsils. Have them out if your doctor says so, and enjoy seeing your child go through the winter without sore throat, head colds and general bad health.

If the tonsils are not sufficiently diseased to need removal, or impossible for other reasons, much can be done to help them when the dreaded sore throat arrives by giving eucalyptus inhalations.

To do this easily, have the child at the bed edge with head over a big bowl filled with boiling water over which you float a teaspoonful of oil of eucalyptus. Swathe the bowl and child's head in a sheet and induce the child to inhale the medicated steam.

A fuss will probably be made, but soothe the child by letting him have a little fresh air, then shut down the sheet and have him take a long breath. Presently he can take the inhalation practically full strength.

I have seen tonsillitis greatly helped by swabbing the tonsils with eucalyptus oil. This is for the adult, however, unless your child is easily handled. It won't hurt.

but it is very disagreeable, as are most swabbings.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Sugar Cookies

2 cups white sugar
1 cup butter
1 cup sweet milk
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon mace
3 level teaspoons baking powder
4 cups sifted pastry flour
2 or more extra cups of sifted flour.

Did you, when you were small, just adore crisp sugar cookies sprinkled with caraway seed? That kind is still my favorite, so I'm leaving out the mace and using caraway for my own cookies. You can have either one.

Cut the butter into a warmed bowl and cream it until quite soft, then gradually work in the sugar, continuing the creaming. Add the beaten eggs and whip well, then alternate milk and the flour sifted with baking powder. Four cups of flour are advised for the mixing part, but this may not make the dough stiff enough to roll nicely, so add just enough more to permit easy handling.

A good stunt is to chill the dough after the four cups are in and roll it in small amounts, avoiding the use of flour other than what is used to flour the board.

Bake in medium oven and sprinkle with sugar as they come hot from the oven.

Count the number of cookies made—including those you ate to test the flavor—divide them into the whole total, 4800, and you'll get the answer for each cookie. It will be quite enough, however, especially for adults. Fill the cookie jar for school days with such cookies as these; they make a fine sweet for children.

The Midnight Bite to Eat was put together a good many months ago, but it is still a grand idea and I am again offering it to you free of charge, this week, on receipt of your stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chicken cooked in the oven, in a casserole, will be the recipe for tomorrow's cooking lesson. The title is Chicken a la Reine, and you can take my word for it, any queen would be lucky to get a taste of it. would be lucky to get a taste of it.

PLANE SPEED TOLD MEMBERS OF 20-30 CLUB

FULLERTON, Aug. 20.—Experiences in airplane engineering provided the subject of an address to members of the Fullerton 20-30 club last night in McFarland's cafe by M. C. Tunison, president of the Pacific Airways Manufacturing company, with a factory at Buena Park. The speaker stated that the success of the pioneering in the aviation industry depends on how well the present young generation carries on the work. At present planes travel 100,000 miles per day, carrying mail and passengers along. Tunison pointed out that considering this mileage, the plane is safer than the automobile going 40 miles per hour on the highway.

Transportation is one of the biggest factors in industry and the airplane is a piece of the transportation system that is rapidly becoming indispensable, the speaker declared. In addition to use in industry, the plane is used in almost any line, from sports to the hardest kind of work, he said.

That the army and navy are making rapid strides in aviation was the declaration by Tunison, who pointed out that this fact alone will assure the future of the airship. During the war 100 miles per hour was top speed, but now the government has several hundred planes that average 200 miles.

Leonard England, program chairman, introduced the speaker, as well as Miss Madeline Wilkinson, who entertained with vocal and piano numbers.

Dr. Hurlburt Will Conduct Class In Bible Study Soon

BREA, Aug. 20.—Dr. Charles Hurlburt, residing on West Orange, near Buena Park, has consented to come to Brea on stated occasions for the purpose of conducting a class in Bible study. Already more than 20 have signed with Mrs. John Gnagy, in charge of registration, for the study.

Dr. Hurlburt has been a life long student of the Bible, has done missionary work among more than 20 native tribes in Africa and now devotes his time to Bible classes and Bible lectures. He formerly conducted a study class in Yorba Linda and many from that vicinity have signified their intention of attending if a class is formed in Brea. Definite plans and dates for the class are expected to be given out within a short time.

The average number of local telephone calls made every day over the Bell lines in the State of Indiana figured up to about 1,500,000 during 1930.

GENTLEMAN THIEF

Edmund Lowe is said to reach the peak of his career in "Transatlantic," much discussed film, which opens at the Fox Broadway theater today.

HUMOR AND DRAMA MINGLE IN MENJOU'S "GREAT LOVER"

Charm and delightful acting was in evidence last night when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Great Lover" made its local debut at the Fox West Coast theater and ends tonight.

Adolphe Menjou is featured in the title role of this picture, a story about a renowned French grand opera baritone who has not one, but many love affairs. It is in reciting the greatest of these that "The Great Lover" concerns itself, Irene Dunne, of "Cimarron," being the feminine protagonist in the cast, with the Russian and vivid Bacanova as the "other woman."

Menjou is delightful as Paurel, the part made famous on the stage by Leo Dittichstein. He gives to it all the delicious suavity, all those subtle nuances, which are part and parcel of the sure and deft Menjou technique.

In the photoplay Ernest Torrence, as Menjou's valet, is responsible for many of the laughs in this comedy romance. The other half of the guffaws which the play produces may be credited to Cliff Edwards, grand opera press agent, and Roscoe Ates, a stuttering reporter.

Neil Hamilton, as the young lover of the picture, has a difficult role, which he handles with genuine skill. Hale Hamilton is excellent as the harried grand opera manager.

Harry Beaumont, responsible for "Dance, Fools, Dance" and "Our Blushing Brides," directed the picture with fine attention to detail.

her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Kitchens jr. Besides the families, Albert Schradick was an invited guest.

Sunday guests at the Fred Shadick home on Orange avenue were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Maahs and family of Anaheim, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schadick of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schadick and son James of Ventura and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stranske of Anaheim.

COLBERT AND MARCH PLAYING AT WALKER

The love team that released all your impaled emotions in "Man-Clasher," Claudette Colbert and Frederic March, are co-starring at Walker's State theater, in "Honor Among Lovers," a Paramount talkie based on a story by Austin Parker, and directed by Dorothy Arzner.

Miss Colbert, poised, personable and endowed to perfection, is cast as a very modern young beauty whose secretarial duties in the offices of a rich broker introduce her to many hazards, not nearly all of which are so much financial as personal. When March, you remember his superb performance in "Royal Family of Broadway," proposes private airplane flights to big college football games, and other bargains in trifling, including a yacht trip around the world. Miss Colbert is the kind of girl who can say "no" ever so charmingly, and without ever flying into a rage.

Still, shrewd little kitten that she is, she marries the wrong man, Monroe Ovelley; and to save him from a prison sentence, she asks the "other man" for one hundred thousand dollars. Strangely enough, this chap decides then and there that she is worth even more than that.

BIG SEA DRAMA OPENS TODAY AT BROADWAY

Anchor's aweigh! Full speed ahead! Those who like their thrills and romance sprayed with the brine of the sea and flavored with the luxury of a deluxe ocean liner are recommended to the Fox Broadway theater, where the Fox drama, "Transatlantic" with Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran in the leading roles is now sailing its entertaining course.

From the moment Edmund Lowe as a suave and debonaire gambler slips aboard the S. S. Transatlantic, to escape the district attorney's graft probe until the ocean greyhound docks at its European port things begin to happen rapidly, and not only to Lowe, but to his fellow passengers, who include Lois Moran as the daughter of a German lens grinder, impersonated by Jean Hersholt, and an absconding banker, played by John Halliday, whose nefarious operations have cost Hersholt his life savings.

To add to the complications Halliday is accompanied by his wife, Myrna Loy, and aboard ship is also Halliday's light of love, a role portrayed by Greta Nissen. Lowe gives, what in this reviewer's estimation is the best performance of his career, while Lois Moran is as sweet and convincing as she was in any of her late pictures. Greta Nissen lends both her talent and blond beauty to the production, while Myrna Loy shows that she is equally capable in a sympathetic role as she is in an exotic one.

Jean Hersholt and John Halliday both deserve a great deal of credit for their splendid performances as does William K. Howard, who did an excellent job of direction.

Teacher Added By Capistrano High

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Aug. 20.—Miss Florence Ione Strum, a graduate of the University of Southern California, has been added to the teaching staff of San Juan Capistrano union high school. Miss Strum will teach English, Spanish and Latin. She takes the place of Miss Ida Howard, who was forced to seek a leave of absence due to illness.

An increased enrollment is expected, many of the graduates of San Clemente grammar school planning on going to Capistrano high this fall. Students will be greeted by many new improvements, $15,000 having been spent in landscaping and construction of tennis courts, ball field and football gridiron.

Richard Dix, who comes to the Fox West Coast theater tomorrow in his latest picture, "The Public Defender."

'PUBLIC DEFENDER' ON HERE TOMORROW

Mad adventure, masked men... modern Robin Hood, danger, romance and high adventure are the outstanding points of interest in Radio Pictures' "The Public Defender," the new Richard Dix starring vehicle showing at the Fox West Coast theater Saturday and Sunday.

What Dix wants is excitement, the thrill of conflict with fighting men and a necessarily virile drama of intense action results. "The Public Defender," tells the story of a man who battles alone against the enemies of society and emerges victorious.

WHAT PLEASING varieties OF JELLIES AND PRESERVES MAY BE MADE WITH MERELY

fresh fruits

AND refined cane sugar

COOK-BOOKS are full of appealing recipes for preserving fruit. And in the majority of these recipes all that is required is fruit and sugar. Rare indeed are recipes in any other class of cookery that call for only two ingredients.

Refined cane sugar has long been the standard of home canners everywhere. It insures fine results in jellies, preserves, and all kinds of canned products. What's more, you'll find that sugar is sold at a rock-bottom price.

Take a look at your cook-books today and choose recipes which call for fruits now in season and those which are to come. Put up as many different kinds of fruit as possible—next winter you'll be glad. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

THE TINYMITES
 STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
 REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The little train was queer, indeed! Said Clowny, "Golly, all we need to do is sit right down and rest. The train will carry us to Lima, which is right nearby. Now watch the scenery we pass by. There is no roof on this train. It is like an open bus."

And then they heard a whistle shriek and, ere they had a chance to speak, a funny engine chugged their way and hitched onto their car. The Travel Man said, "That's how we are going to travel. You shall see!" The next will be a dandy trip. What lucky boys you are."

The engine then began to puff and, when it worked up steam enough, the Tynymytes began to move. "We're on our way!" cried one. "I hope the train will pick up speed. A real fast ride is what we need, but then I don't want travel slow it will be full of fun."

The dinky train wound here and

There and anon they saw some scenery rare. "That's Lima," said the Travel Man. "We'll be there very soon, and then we'll like right down to the trees and the hills and the water to it. Then Coppy said, 'We're just in time. It's exactly noon.'"

They pulled into a station where the natives stood round everywhere. All of the Tlincs waved at them. The natives waved right back. They went down the road, and down the ground, the little engine swung around and very shortly disappeared along the winding track.

The first street that they came to was a very pretty sight because big trees stood high on either side of the road. They drove down to West Coppy said, "I'd like to eat, but loafing here would be a treat. Let's sit here and enjoy the shade, then on our way we'll go."

The German who wrote the comedy about Brigham Young . . . Josef Sell, who has never seen the United States . . . but who hopes to visit New York soon.

Amusing German Play About Brigham Young's 25th Wife

How a young war veteran who has never been to America read the story of the Mormon leader, and then made it into a comedy-drama which is a stage hit that many Europeans are enjoying EUROPEAN authors and playwrights have been discovering lately that very entertaining novels and plays can be built around certain characters and incidents in American history.

Sometimes the things that they select have been overlooked by the writers of America.

Thus the best play ever written around the life of Abraham Lincoln is the work of an English poet, John Drinkwater. The great romantic story of John Sutter of California got its best expression from the French novelist, Blaise Cendrars.

So it is, too, with another unique episode in American history—the early reign of the Mormons in Utah. All kinds of dramatic material lay buried there, but it remained practically untouched until the other day a German dramatist, Josef Sell, wrote a sparkling comedy called "The Twenty-fifth Wife," produced it at the biggest theater in Darmstadt and saw it become one of Germany's dramatic hits of the year.

Herr Sell has chosen to make his play a light comedy, and he has taken more or less liberty with historical facts in doing so.

He puts his action in the midst of one of the critical events in far western history—the occasion when United States troops were marched toward Utah to help install a new governor in place of the famous Brigham Young.

HERR SELL emphasizes the clash between the Mormon organization and the U. S. government, and makes Young the central figure of his play. As the play begins, Young has two things on his mind:

First, he is trying to find some method of avoiding a bloody clash with the United States troops.

Second he has been smitten with the pretty face of Harriet Amelia Folsom, the daughter of a recent arrival in Utah, and he plans to make her his 25th wife.

The opening scene shows a mountain pass where Mormons are on guard to give warning when the first American troops are sighted. One of them, a young fellow named Taylor, is in deep trouble. He is in the bad graces of Brigham Young because he has only one wife and refuses to take any more; and he says:

"He thinks one wife is too few. I think one wife is one too many."

While he and the others are talking, Young himself appears on the scene to get the latest news. He meets Folsom, who presents his daughter, Harriet Amelia. Young at once turns to the girl and says:

"Harriet? Naturally, that won't do. One of my wives is named Harriet, and that could lead to confusion if I married you. I shall call you Amelia."

Naturally, this makes Harriet indignant—especially since she herself is not a Mormon. She tells Young her name is Harriet and that she would not dream of marrying him. There is a lively interchange, to which Young's final answer is that he will have her baptized into his church as soon as he has made peace with the American army. But Harriet, sure that the American army will overthrow the Mormon regime, remarks that "The Americans will play your wedding march."

The second scene is broad comedy, bordering on farce. Brigham Young is sitting in a big room with many of his wives. They are busily chattering, after the manner of women everywhere, over the latest fashions in dress, as described by a kinswoman who has sent them the latest news from New York. Young, bored to death by this chatter, seeks a diversion to shut them up; so he rounds on a wife named Mary Anne and tells her that their son Jedediah has been misbehaving.

SHE retorts that he is not her child—he is Lizzie's. Young takes out a notebook, which is a sort of catalogue of his 24 wives, with the names of the children each has borne him; and, sure enough, he finds that the wayward Jedediah is the son of Lizzie. He begs Mary Anne's pardon, saying by way of apology that when one has 48 children he can be pardoned if he gets mixed.

Presently Young dismisses his wives, and Amelia appears. He immediately starts telling her how he loves her, and she coolly responds that he is a liar. In fact, Amelia says, she would much rather talk about a more interesting subject—how he manages to get along with so many wives without getting his eyes scratched out.

Their talk ends with a quarrel in which she says that she is going to go back east and tell everybody that Brigham Young is a heartless exploiter and oppressor of women.

The next scene shows the main hall in the Lion House, with the bedrooms of the various wives opening off of it. Here Herr Sell has used the procedure followed from time immemorial by every writer of comedy who took as his subject the Turk and his many wives—and some of the comedy that results is extremely broad, not to say raw.

Presently Young goes out and Amelia comes in, to talk triumphantly to the "oppressed" wives. The Americans are coming, she tells them, and they can break their chains. To her amazement they are not eager to break any chains, and seem perfectly willing to stay right where they are.

Farce-comedy in the home of the prophet. . . . A scene from Herr Sell's play showing Brigham Young sitting and thinking of Amelia, his newest love . . . while his wives peer out of their bedroom doors to see what he is up to.

One wife scornfully says that she does not see how their household affairs can possibly interest the American politicians and the American army. When she lived in the east she had never heard of any American army being sent out because some husband regularly beat up his only wife twice a week and gave her a black eye. Young, she says, has 24 wives and treats them all with kindness; why should the United States government worry about it? Amelia gives the wives up as a bad job.

Meanwhile the American troops have been coming closer to Salt Lake City, and Brigham Young has been getting ready for them. He sends almost the entire population of the city on a trek with their food and belongings to a village many miles distant, concealed in the mountains.

The American general, when he enters, will find a deserted city. If Young does not make peace with him, he will burn the town and leave the American army to fight it out with the desert as well as it may be able to do.

But when the general does appear on the scene he and Young get on together in fine style. The general's only trouble is that he is not eager to take his forces back east again. To do so means to go back to his wife, and it happens that she is a tyrant. The campaign is just a holiday from her, and the general is not at all anxious to have it end.

In fact, the general thinks there is something in this polygamy, after all.

HOWEVER, Young is in a hurry to get the general out of Utah; and eventually they make a pact. If within three days Young can persuade Amelia to be his wife, the American troops will march away; otherwise, they will stay. The American general has heard Amelia reject Young's offer of marriage, and he believes that this bargain is a safe one for him.

Now, accordingly, it becomes necessary for Young to Amelia Young, "25th wife" of Brigham Young . . . as portrayed on the German stage in Josef Sell's comedy.

press his suit with all speed. He tried to work on Amelia's feelings. He tells her how he created a garden in the desert, and speaks of his responsibilities to 60,000 men, women and children. He can save them all if Amelia will marry him. Indeed, he says, she need only go through the form of marriage if she wants to, and can go back east right after the ceremony.

All along, Amelia has been showing a nicely graduated and slowly increasing interest and affection for the Mormon leader. Now she consents to do as he wishes. The Yankee general sees the wedding performed and regretfully leads his troops back east—back to his terrible wife again.

But Amelia does not go back with them. She has played her part in the comedy, but now that it is over she decides that being Brigham Young's 25th wife is far from being the worst fate imaginable. So she stays—and the play ends.

So much for the play. Now it is necessary to point out how the playwright has taken liberties with historical facts.

AS a matter of fact, there was an early Mormon settler named Folsom—William H. Folsom, who helped design the famous Salt Lake Tabernacle. And, as it happens, one Amelia Folsom was Brigham Young's last wife, although the famous Mormon leader at no time had as many as 25, the number with which he is credited in Herr Sell's fanciful drama.

In the closing years of his life, Brigham Young built a separate residence in which he planned to entertain strangers who came to see him, as well as his many friends and official callers; and it was understood that Amelia was to preside over this house. However, the building was unfinished at Young's death, and neither he nor any member of his family ever occupied it.

However, it should be emphasized that the events described in the play are pure fiction. Herr Sell used Amelia Folsom's name, but in all other respects the "Amelia" of the play is a fictitious character, pure and simple.

Costumes worn in the play are believed to be fairly good copies of the costumes worn in Utah in the days just before the Civil War. On the stage the women wear a sort of bloomer-arrangement, quaint and old-fashioned in appearance; and it is known that in the '50s of the last century an attempt was made to introduce a stabilized costume for Mormon women—an affair of bloomers and skirts combined, which soon went out of style for the simple reason that Mormon women had too strong a feminine fondness for pretty clothing to carry it on very long.

A good insight into the actual home life of the Young family is given in a book, "The Life Story of Brigham Young," recently printed in England and written by Susa Young Gates, one of Brigham Young's daughters. She remarks, telling of her childhood in the Lion House:

"The Lion House was the loved home of as healthy and happy a family of mothers and children as ever dwelt beneath a roof. On this I speak with knowledge in this intimate revelation of Brigham Young's home life, for I was the first child, born beneath its unique roof."

A GLIMPSE of the evening routine in the Lion House is given as follows:

"The custom of evening prayer-time in the Lion House was as fixed as the stars. About seven o'clock the rhythmic sound of the prayer-bell was heard as father's hand lifted it in regular light-stroke counts and the flying feet of children, the quiet coming of his lady wives (for they were 'ladies,' every one of them) filled the halls with clatter and soon every chair was taken while the patriarch and his goodly family sat beside the center-table and waited till the last child came in.

"A hymn or two was joyously sung, for we were a happy lot of singers. Then came a quiet prayer of gratitude and adoration; of appeal for each loved one and for all the world; for the work of the Lord in the various priestly functionings, and for protection from evil and accident. Then the family arose after the generous responses of 'Amen,' while the younger children hurried off to bed, perhaps, and the older ones hurried to study or to prepare for theater or ball if it was winter or holiday time, or for quiet reading and chatting in the various sitting rooms of the several mothers."

And she adds: "We were all as happy, mothers and children, as we could have been anywhere under any other circumstances."

As to the attitudes of the wives of Brigham Young, the author has this to say:

"The wives of Brigham Young lived together without outer friction or violent disagreement, so far as any of children knew. That they were all equally congenial could not be expected, for they were not weaklings and all had minds of their own. But their differences, if and when they existed, were their own affairs and were settled amongst themselves without disturbing in the slightest degree the serene tranquility of our family life. They were ladies, and lived their lives as such. The children were never aware of any quarrels."

"Not all these good women were sweet-tempered or unselfish—not by any means. They were just mortals. But there were enough of them who radiated love and comradeship in ever-widening circles to humanize the group. If all wanted to be happy, each must share in unselfish contribution to family harmony; at least they all tried, and all succeeded, so far as my brothers and sisters or I can remember."

PROBLEMS OF THE WINTER

Fred C. Croxton, acting chairman of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment, is beginning a nation-wide campaign for the canning of surplus fruits and vegetables so as to provide food for the unemployed this coming winter. The movement, it is said, is based on the knowledge that large quantities of vegetables were produced in emergency gardens which were raised by unemployed persons throughout the country this summer. And in addition there is a large surplus of fruits in many sections of the country.

The chairman of this committee explains that conservation of this food for winter distribution not only would aid in preventing hunger, but is a sound economic procedure as well. He declares that it will in no way interfere with the commercial distribution of these products.

A portion of the committee's announcement is as follows:

"The President's Emergency Committee for Employment has initiated a program to encourage the canning of surplus fruits and vegetables to provide food for unemployed over the winter.

"The committee has recommended that local emergency organizations and other agencies dealing with relief help the unemployed put up canned goods or that the agencies put them up and distribute them to the unemployed. Many communities already have excellent programs started to provide this assistance. Mr. Croxton said, and the expectation is that many others will be under way shortly.

"In promoting the campaign on a nation-wide basis, the committee has received the co-operation of several national organizations with extensive local representation in the localities where the actual aid to the unemployed will take place. These include the county home demonstration agents and farm demonstration agents, teachers of home economics under the Smith-Hughes bill, and the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Executives of these organizations have asked their local units to assist in promoting the program.

"Many of the unemployed lacking equipment or a knowledge of proper canning methods may be aided in securing these in their communities under competent leadership. Organizations and individuals may help by putting up extra amounts of canned goods to be distributed to needy families."

We would suggest, in harmony with this announcement, that a committee be appointed here in Santa Ana to work out this very program. It would be a tremendous factor in helping to relieve distress this coming winter.

WAR AND HUMAN NATURE

There was an interesting discussion at the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., the other day. Rear Admiral C. L. Hussey took the position that since domination is the keynote of all human striving, therefore wars are inevitable and will be inevitable. Professor Stratton of the University of California and Otto Klineberg, instructor at Columbia university, maintained that since human nature has been diverted or modified so as to wipe out other institutions which seemed as firmly rooted in human nature as war, it also can be diverted from war. For example, the argument has been advanced in times past that slavery and human sacrifice were deeply rooted in human nature, therefore it was hopeless to try to bring about a change. Yet both were destroyed without weakening human character.

Professor Stratton pointed out that there are two sides to human nature, one giving rise to crime, the other to human progress. Psychology looks to the intelligent side of human nature to lead the more favored nations to establishing an institution which will settle whatever disputes between nations in the past has been thought to determine.

Dr. Stratton said that there is nothing which psychology knows of human nature to declare the task impossible.

It was brought out by Mr. Klineberg that among the Eskimos aggrieved parties settle their differences by singing satirical songs and the best singer is adjudged the victor. A tribe in British Columbia holds a "potlatch." The aggrieved parties compete in giving away their property. The one who gives away the most retains his prestige.

These particular examples of the diversion of human nature would be far more convincing were they more satisfying. It is a bit ridiculous to picture the Kaiser and Clemenceau singing satirical songs while the assemblage of the nations listened and determined upon the victor. Regardless of the examples, however, anyone who has studied psychology knows that anti-social instincts can be diverted and redirected into a proper direction.

Human nature has come to restrain itself and divert its pugnacious instincts. Before the dawn of civilization man acted toward each other in an intolerable way, yet it was just as much a part of his nature to act so, as it is today to say a pleasant word to his neighbor and refrain from knocking the head off his business rival. In national and local society human nature has found ways to get along without wholesale bloodshed, even though human nature does want to dominate. Is it any less possible between nations? It may be more difficult but it is possible.

SALMON AND TROUBLE

It may be encouraging to the consumer to know that the Alaskan salmon pack of 1931 promises to be greater than the average year, and it is expected that there will be a decline in prices to the ultimate consumer. While there have been no figures given out as yet, they are expected within a few days.

The packing of salmon is a business which is subject to tremendous fluctuations from year to year, varying from 5 to 10 per cent. It is unfortunate that with this great production it is not very probable that the companies will make any more, if as much, as in previous years. But for the millions of people who use this food there are elements of comfort in the thought of this condition.

Cheap salmon may be a solution for some budgets but for wives of A. E. F. men it isn't so easy. The problem, which has been absolutely insurmountable in many a household ever since the war, is how to get those men to eat the delicate, savory salmon concoction. For the wife it was so convenient, a can of salmon with lemon, salmon and peas, salmon loaf, salmon souffle, salmon this way and that could be dished up in a jiffy. But so strong was, and most cases is, the prejudice of the A. E. F. man against salmon that the most amiable husbands have been known to absolutely draw the line on salmon.

The reason is the same as that which in boyhood destroyed one man's appetite for codfish. Being an orphan he was in a children's institution as a child. They never did get enough to eat, except on Thanksgiving and Christmas. Then one day some of the lads discovered a barrel of salted codfish. And that was the last codfish he has ever eaten. It is more than probable that he will go to his grave without breaking his record.

It is one of those common subjects of discussion among women, this time limited to wives of A. E. F. men. The opening question is: "And how is your husband on salmon?" The answer is practically universally the same. All other things being equal, the wife of the A. E. F. man who will eat salmon is envied. So far it has seldom been possible to so disguise salmon that the A. E. F. man would eat it. That is why the women talk so much about it. They are always hoping to find the recipe which will break the ban against salmon, for they all know it is prejudice.

The A. E. F. man always detests salmon, even with nice fresh mushrooms. The only way salmon is possible, for the rest of the family, is to have enough else on the table that father has a full meal without touching the salmon, and there is no economy in just having salmon as a side dish.

BORDER TRAFFIC

On August 13th the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Seymour Lowman, closed the Texas border against people coming in from Mexico during the night. This, it was given out, was because of gambling houses in the Mexican cities just across the Rio Grande river from Texas. The service in these cities will be from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

It appears that following a 24-hour service over the various bridges into Mexico, which began last March, gambling casinos began to spring up in Mexican towns opposite American border cities. The Treasury Department is keeping the border open until 9 p. m. to accommodate legitimate traffic for public convenience, but it does not propose to feed the leeches in these Mexican cities on American money.

For some time the gates are closed at the San Diego border at 6 p. m., which not only helps the citizens, but helps the business interests of San Diego also.

Let's Put Him in the Bag!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

BEWARE OF GLUTTONY

The germ is so extremely small,
No scientist can hope
To see him wriggling 'round at all,
Save through a microscope.
Against pursuit he keeps on guard,
However fierce and hot,
And that is why it's been so hard
To put him on the spot.

But though the microscopic mite
Has little girth or weight,
He has an avid appetite
Which he delights to sate.
Though now he lightly can elude
The keenest human eyes,
If he is fed abundant food
He soon augments his size.

So science means to fatten him;
By diet it will try
To make him large of girth and limb
And easy to destroy.
And when he has grown large enough—
Say in a week or so—
It means to watch him do his stuff
And promptly lay him low.

And so he soon will disappear
Without a sign or trace,
And leave this now unhealthy sphere
A far more pleasant place.
A moral here the world will find
Which it may wisely heed:
The germ, like all of creature kind,
Destroys itself by greed.

Did Overproduction Cause the Slump?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

The explanation of the present business depression which we hear often than any other is "overproduction." Many of those who use this term have only a vague notion of what they mean by it. Many others have a notion which is perfectly definite. They mean that there was a marked increase in the world production of goods in general during 1927, 1928 and 1929. This extraordinary increase, they say, caused the present business depression.

As a matter of fact, there is no evidence of any unusual growth in production. All the available statistics for all countries put together show a remarkably even rate of increase for the past 80 years, and no marked change in the rate from 1923 to 1929. The world production chart of the League of Nations shows a virtually straight line up to 1929.

What is true of goods in general is true of many basic commodities. It is true of minerals and metals, and of foods and tobacco. It is equally true of raw materials as a whole.

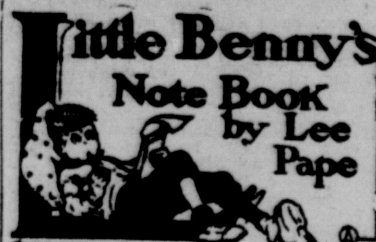

This has led Carl Snyder, of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, to remark that if we had never had data for individual countries, but only data for the world as a whole, we should never have discovered any sudden increases in world production. Or, for that matter, anything properly called a business cycle.

The war is supposed to have brought about an enormous increase of world production. This increase does not appear in world statistics. What does appear is "the most fateful arrest of normal increase in at least a hundred years." In other words, the war was a blasting paralysis of growth.

Apparently, the war has already caused a loss in world production of 400 billion dollars. This—not the debts of the nations as shown on paper—was the real material cost of the war.

In any event, there is no evidence whatever of unusual increase of production prior to the crash in the stock market and the collapse of business. Consequently, the depression could not have been caused by this kind of "overproduction."

Me and pop was taking a walk
And we started to go pass a drug store, pop saying, That reminds me, I want to make a few purchases.

And we went in, pop saying to the man, A ball of twine, please.
Yes sir, the man said. And he went and got it, saying, Anything else?

How about a new wick for a cigar lighter? pop said, and the man sed, We have them.
And he got pop one, saying, Is that all?

Do you happen to have a small dictionary? pop sed, and the man sed, Yes indeed, I'll get it for you.
Which he did, saying, Will that be all sir? and pop sed, Yes. Or no, I just happened to think, I need a pair of rubber boots.

That's one thing I don't happen to have, the man sed, and pop sed,
What, no rubber boots, what kind of a drug store is this?

It's a regular drug store but we don't carry rubber boots, the man sed, and pop sed, It seems mitey queer to me but I suppose you know your bizness best.

And he payed for the twine and the wick and the dictionary and started to go out, the man following him to the door, saying,
I happen to be in a position to get you a pair of rubber boots if you can wait a day or 2.

No thanks, its urgent, I expect a leak in the cellar, pop sed. And when we got out I sed, G. pop, do you really want a pair of rubber boots? and he sed, No I don't, and as a matter of fact I would be in a very embarrassing position if he had come across with a pair, but I just made up my mind to try to ask for something that's not on sale in a drug store, and by golly I got away with it, I guess theres nothing else about me.

ON SORTING BEANS

My morning paper brings me news of the birth of another robot.

Robots are not popular in a period of unemployment.

But the robot I read about this morning illustrates a point that is worth playing with for a moment.

There is under construction at Lowell, Michigan, a new plant, the only one of its kind in the world, that will sort beans without the aid of human eyes or human hands.

The beans will be sorted by a battery of 200 automatic machines of the photo-electric cell sort. An uncanny eye will detect and discard, with accuracy and speed, any bean that betrays the slightest discoloration.

And all this without human hands at any time touching the beans.

This means, of course, momentary distress for erstwhile bean sorters.

And this is the sort of incident upon which the rebels against the machine age seize with glee.

They will bemoan the passing of the human bean sorters as a symbol of the machine's tyranny over man.

I cannot share their sorrow.

I am deeply moved by the transient tragedy of unemployment in the interim between the time a new machine throws men out of work and the time when manual readjustments reabsorb them into productive work.

But, in the long view of human development, it is better that bean sorting be done by machines than by men.

Life can be made something better than an adventure in sorting beans.

It is the function of machinery to do all of the routine work that can possibly be done without the intervention of human hands.

The rich development of life lies outside such routine.

We have not been beaten by the machines.

We have betrayed the machines.

We have proved ourselves incapable of using the machines for the emancipation of the race from drudgery so that it might spend its energy in the conquest of values that lie beyond the race for bread and butter.

This is our next big job!

We shall do it!

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

TOO MUCH PLAY

The warm sunny days coax the children out to play. They start early and continue on as long as they can stand on their feet.
When it is time to stop and get ready for supper and bed they are so weary that they are no longer in control of themselves. They begin crying and cannot stop. Everything thing is wrong. They don't want to be washed. They don't want to be brushed. They don't like their supper. They don't want to go to bed. They don't want to do anything and keep up a battle against their discomfort until sleep finally over-takes them. By that time their mothers are worn out.

We have to remember that little children grow tired as they play. It is possible for them to be so tired that they do not feel fired at all. This allows them to continue going until they are past the safety line. Over-fatigue reduces their control, lowers their vitality and lessens the value of the day in the open.

The routine day, well programmed, lessens the danger of over-fatigue. If the time allowed for play is well proportioned with rest time—a change of occupation is best—scattered along the morning hours, they will reach the half hour before lunch without too much fatigue. The call for return to the house should be sent out about half an hour before meal time. Give the child an easy allowance of time to respond. Call him once—allow time for his gathering himself together and facing homeward. Sudden demands for stopping all play are not wise. If he does not take the call go or send after him and bring him along. Do this a few times and he will understand what you mean and obey the first call.

See that he is washed, rested and ready for lunch. Keep that period as free of excitement as possible. A cheerful quiet lunch hour will go far toward restoring poise and setting the child in the mood for rest. He must rest for a time after his lunch. How long he rests depends upon the nature of the child and his stage of growth. Children under four or thereabout, usually benefit by a nap but some children refuse to sleep and it is not good to stage a battle to make them sleep. Let them rest in a shaded room in quiet. Give them a favorite toy for amusement and leave them even though they do not sleep, they rest.

After rest hour they dress again for play. Have the clothes cool, loose, and inexpensive as possible.
Play clothes must never cost the child a thought. Arrange for a change of activity about the second hour out, serve a drink, or some summer treat, and redirect their play. Summon them half an hour before mealtime and let them get ready for the evening.

After the last meal of the day the younger children should not romp about. They should be amused quietly. Their mood must be set for quiet rest. The older ones usually have a romp in the dusk before settling down for their quiet half hour before bed.
But they also should be guarded against too much excitement, too much hard play.

NAVY ORDERS SHIPS

On August 20, 1917, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels conferred with representatives of 25 ship and engine builders for the purpose of providing the United States with more destroyers than any other power.

"Destroyers," he said, "are the one thing submarines fear."

Secretary of the Navy Daniels indicated the navy department would order all the destroyers the builders could produce. The sum of $400,- 000,000 was mentioned as necessary to carry out this program. A four-year building plan was proposed.

On this date also General Petain won a victory before Verdun, breaking the enemy line and capturing German defenses on both sides of the Meuse. More than 4000 prisoners were taken.

Time To Smile

TAXED HER MEMORY

"You've been out with worse looking fellows than I am, haven't you?"

No answer.

"I say, you've been out with worse-looking fellows than I, haven't you?"

"I heard you the first time. I was trying to think."—Passing Show.

IT'S ALL THE SAME

"They say you married her because her aunt left her a fortune."
"That's a lie! I'd have married her just the same whatever had left it to her."—Titi-Bits.

IT IS CONFUSING

Counsel—Are you sure this is the man who stole your car?
Plaintiff—It was until your cross-examination. Now I don't know if I ever possessed a car.—Der Lustige Sachse, Leipzig.

TURNED AROUND

"What are Smith's daughters like?"
"The elder one is terribly simple and the younger is simply terrible."—Passing Show.
